76 Grind On -:- 11 COUPLES QUIT MARATHON -:- As Day Closes

"WOTTA RELIEF!"

Once in every hour—thank goodness!—there's a pause as Pittsburgh's own dance marathon, that for the championship of the whole, wide world, grinds on. Here, A. F. Culbert takes the couch. The girls are Babe Miller (left) and Grace Kurfman.

FREE

Free food every once-in-a-while comes to those wide-awake enough to eat. The chap in the front foreground never saw a newspaper photographer before. Milton (Dance) Crandall's host. For 15 minutes those swaying, tiring figures pause.

GENEROUS

Generous applications of this are applied, increasing steadily in generosity. Roy Brady's calf is manipulated here by Joey Reynolds, with Anna Breen (left) and Nell Shade watching.

BACK AGAIN

All of this little story takes part once each hour in a scant 15 minutes—and then it's "on with the dance." Above is a comprehensive view of a section of the marathon showing a number of competing couples. From now on the pace slows and the field diminishes.

Tunney on Shakespeare. Another Flood? Maybe. In Any Case, Thanks. Speed Championship.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE

(Copyright, 1928.)

GENE TUNNEY, world champion, told the Yale boys about Shakespeare yesterday, invited by Professor Phelps.

Tunney wondered "whether Shakespeare would be a boxing fan." Probably not. But he described real fighting, without a purse, better than anybody.

"Imitate the action of the tiger:
Stiffen the sinews, summon up the blood,
Disguise fair nature with hard-favour'd rage,
Then lend the eye a terrible aspect:
Let it pry through the portage of the head,
Like the brass cannon; let the brow o'erwhelm it. . . .
Now set the teeth, and stretch the nostril wide:
Hold hard the breath, and bend up every spirit
To his full height!"

Dempsey used to do all that—and more.

FLOOD waters of the White River have overswept levees, sweeping through five counties in Arkansas. In Mississippi the Tombigbee and Luxapalilla rivers are nearing the danger stage. More rain before Wednesday would mean serious danger.

PERHAPS the government will decide that $750,000,000 invested in flood control would be cheaper than another flood.

Mr. W. S. Gifford, president of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, will spend two thousand million dollars on new construction in the next five years. Uncle Sam is rich enough to spend one-third that amount to save crops and lives of his nephews in the Mississippi valley.

SENATOR HEFLIN says, "Calvin Coolidge was elected by the Catholics." Mr. Coolidge, says he, in return for the Catholic vote, "agreed to interfere in Mexico and Nicaragua, and save them for the Roman church." That's Senator Heflin's interesting contribution to history.

If the Catholics did elect Calvin Coolidge, Americans, including the Protestants, are much obliged to them. It was a successful election.

THIS country again holds the automobile speed championship. Yesterday Ray Keech, going 207.55 miles an hour, took the record from Capt. Campbell, British.

Frank Lockhart, who recently shot into the ocean with his "Black Hawk" Stutz, is tuning up to beat Keech.

While such speed is not useful in real life, it does, as Mr. Moskovics says, compel the building of better machines.

ON THE second day's celebration of Rome's birthday, yesterday, Mussolini gave a saber fencing exhibition with an army officer. His health and heart must be sound, for he kept up the savage fencing for a quarter of an hour. Three thousand five hundred musicians, led by Mascagni, of "Cavalleria Rusticana," played the war "Hymn of the Piave." When Mussolini celebrates a birthday he really celebrates it.

A WOMAN about 50 could not remember her name or address. Doctors will investigate. We all sympathize, forgetting that 100 years hence, nobody now living will remember his name or address in all probability. We may not even remember the name of the planet on which we formerly lived. We can't remember the names or addresses we had before we came here.

NICHOLAS M. SCHENCK, president of Loew's theaters, wisely bars the picture "Dawn" from all those theaters. A picture calculated to revive and intensify international hatreds should not be shown here. There are better ways of making money.

PRIME MINISTER POINCARE comes out ahead in Sunday's French election. "Reds" are routed and Poincare will have a majority in the Chamber of Deputies sufficient to carry through his financial rehabilitation plans.

The French are a practical people.

JEREMIAH MILBANK has given $250,000 to study and fight infantile paralysis. Able scientists will spend the money.

The Rockefeller Institute, with millions at its disposal, has long been fighting infantile paralysis and other diseases of children and adults.

The people like to see big fortunes accumulated, when they are used so wisely.

ARREST 3 IN VOTE BATTLE IN HILL

The Hill district furnished the first election battle today. Three men were arrested in the Eighth District, Third Ward, Mercer street and Bedford avenue, and lodged in Center Avenue Police Station. They are Charles P. Betters, district chairman; Dewey Budwey, elected judge of election but not permitted to serve, and Teddy Tedrous, opponent of Betters for the chairmanship. All were released on bail.

After his release Budwey went before Judge James H. Gray in Common Pleas Court and charged that, although duly elected, he found another man serving as judge. It was explained that because Budwey had moved within the district, the office was declared vacant and another man was appointed. The trouble started over the seating of Budwey.

Due to the scandals and criminal charges arising out of vote frauds at the last November election, a rigid watch was maintained today to prevent cheating at the polls. The Allegheny County Election Association provided a fund of $2,500 to cover the cost of impounding and opening ballot boxes in cases where the count comes under suspicion. More than 300,000 voters were registered in the county, but

Harris Put on Block

Waivers on Joe Harris, veteran utility man, and Fred Brickell, rookie outfielder, have been asked by the Pirates, it was learned today.

In addition to starting action looking toward the release of Harris and Brickell, the Pirate management today cut Coburn Jones, rookie infielder, from the squad. Jones, according to President Barney Dreyfuss, has been released under option to the Bridgeport, Conn., club of the Eastern League.

The Bucs acquired Harris from the Washington Senators after the close of the 1926 season, when he was waived out of the American League. Although the Nats used Joe in the outfield, he was shifted to first base by Manager Bush and tended the initial sack regularly throughout the greater part of the 1927 campaign. His heavy hitting was a big factor in the Bucs' pennant-winning drive. He has appeared only as a pinch hitter this season.

The Pirates purchased Brickell from the Wichita Western League club in August of 1926 and farmed him out to Indianapolis in May of 1927. He was recalled late last season and was taken to training camp by the Bucs this year.

Jones came to the Corsairs from the Fort Bayard, N. M., team. He showed much promise in the spring practice games, but is not yet ripe for fast company.

The release of Jones reduces the Buccaneer forces to a total of 28 players—four catchers, 12 pitchers, six infielders and six outfielders.

22 DROP OUT OF DANCE; 76 LEFT

The national dance marathon in Motor Square Garden was 17 hours old at 2 p. m. today and 38 couples of the 49 starting were still tripping a very light fantastic toe.

Eleven couples had dropped out because—well, enough is enough, and one couple, which came all the way from Altoona, had been disqualified.

The remaining 38 couples had shuffled along from 9:11 o'clock last night in what has been fondly nicknamed the bunion derby and Milton (Dance) Crandall's solution of perpetual motion.

Marathon experts, of whom there are many, were surprised at the freshness of many of the fox-trotting marathoners as the gruelling hours set in. Albert Benach, the marathon champion, who danced 62 hours in February, with his new partner, Cora Dean, seemed as alive as the noon whistles.

"You can tell 'em," Mr. Benach, who is of the Strip, advised, "that I'll double that old record and if anybody's standin' up then, I'll triple it. And I'll bet you a new hat I do."

Not all, however, of the couples felt like turning handsprings. More than one blonde was beginning to lose the wave from her new marcel and a few of the boy-friends were explaining that they'd have to catch a train rather soon.

The fates were rather cruel to Thelma Beck and Harry C. Ellis, Altoona's contribution to the party. Today, after having dragged along for 12 hours, they were disqualified when Thelma left the dance floor before the hourly 15-minute rest period.

Any doubt that "the peepul" were not interested in distance dancing was thoroughly dispelled after lunch when the customers began pouring in to the East End house of entertainment.

Three couples reached for their

AIR ACE TO DASH TO BENNETT'S BEDSIDE

CURTISS FIELD, N. Y., April 24. — (AP.) — Col. Charles A. Lindbergh expects to fly to Quebec this afternoon with anti-pneumonia serum for Floyd Bennett, aviator, critically ill in a hospital there.

Lindbergh's plane was wheeled from its hangar at Mitchel Field, where he arrived last night from Washington, to the flying field here. Officials at the field said they expected the Colonel to take off "within a few hours."

It was learned that a request had come from Quebec to the Rockefeller Foundation in New York for the serum and the Rockefeller organization had appealed to the Guggenheim Fund for the Promotion of Aeronautics to get quick transportation. Harry Guggenheim, president, immediately asked Col. Lindbergh if he would fly with the serum to Canada.

"Sure I will. Let's go" Lindbergh replied, and a rush was made for an automobile. Guggenheim and Col. Lindbergh left New York for the flying field shortly before 2 o'clock, with motorcycle police clearing the way.

BATTLES FOR LIFE

QUEBEC, April 24.—(AP.)—Floyd Bennett, noted American aviator who is seriously ill with lobar pneumonia, today was waging a battle for life.

His condition was described as very grave in a bulletin issued at the Jeffrey Hale Hospital. He was reported this morning as "resting somewhat more comfortably, but very low." Meanwhile, his wife, who hurried to this city to her husband's bedside, also was under medical care, suffering a bad attack of bronchitis.

Bennett, who gained world-wide fame in 1926 when he flew over the North Pole as pilot for Commander Richard E. Byrd, was stricken ill upon his arrival at Murray Bay last Friday as pilot of the Ford relief plane for the stranded German fliers at Greenley Island. He had left a sick bed in Detroit to make the trip.

The physicians' statement said Bennett was suffering from lobar pneumonia, which had involved a large part of the left lung and which was beginning to affect the right. The statement was signed by Dr. W. H. Delaney, superintent of the Jeffrey Hale Hospital, and Dr. A. L. Barach, in charge of pneumonia research work at the Presbyterian Hospital, New York, who accompanied Mrs. Bennett here.

Commander Byrd, who had selected Bennett as his second in command for his Antarctic expedition, left his home in Boston for Quebec last night.

Operator Tells of Loss

By MAX HENRICI,
Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, April 24. —Testifying before the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee today in its investigation of the coal strike, George M. Jones, of Toledo, president of the Ohio Collierics Company, stated that his company had lost $2,000,000 during the last five years. Like other operators, he has been selling coal for less than the cost of production, to keep his mines going and hold his customers.

Jones is also a banker, and he told the committee that the coal industry is in such desperate condition that he would not lend a coal operator a dollar.

The only solution for the problem, he at first said, lay in the elimination of high cost mines, which would tend to bring the supply of coal closer to demand.

Northern operators would be helped, he added, if the freight differential to the lake ports between the Pennsylvania and Ohio fields on the one hand, and the West Virginia and Kentucky fields on the other, were raised. It ought to be 90 cents, in his opinion.

Jones at the outset was disposed to think that nothing could be done by federal legislation to improve the situation, but after listening to various suggestions made by Senators Frank R. Gooding, of Idaho; Hugo L. Black, of Alabama, and Guy D. Goff, of West Virginia, he remarked that he would welcome helpful laws.

FLIERS AND RESCUERS SNOW BOUND

LAKE STE. AGNES, Que., April 24.—(By the Canadian Press.)—A report received by the Canadian Transcontinental Airways here this morning said that the Bremen and the Ford relief plane were stormbound at Greenley Island.

The message, received by Robert Cannon, of the company, said that snow was falling and a strong northeast wind blowing at the tiny island where the trans-Atlantic plane made a forced landing 10 days ago.

The Bremen was said to have been put in readiness for continuing its flight to New York with the

U. S. MINE REGULATION URGED BY JONES

Let American industry rid itself of the law of the jungle and solve the coal situation by nationalizing the mines, putting prices, the rate of labor and the profits of producer under the supervision of Uncle Sam.

This epitomized the conclusion reached by several ministers attending the coal seminar in the Smithfield Street Methodist Episcopal Church today, after John H. Jones, president of the Bertha-Consumers Coal Company, had appealed for a government coal commission to be appointed to regulate the coal industry. He declared the human element should be considered in any constructive plan for the elimination of strikes and the stabilizing of the industry.

Three speakers for the operators, C. G. Lesher, executive vice president of the Pittsburgh Coal Company; H. F. Baker, president of the Pittsburgh Terminal Coal Corporation, and Jones were the three speakers at the morning session and the plea for nationalization was made by several ministers who spoke extemporaneously from the floor.

"The practical method to settle the question is to go on as we are," said Jones, "but the result will be suffering and want among the miners, bankruptcy of merchants and the ruin of communities. The human way is to take care of the surplus of 250,000 miners, consolidate the mines and selling agencies by a federal commission which also would regulate the hours of labor, conditions, rates, etc. It would mean 50 cents a ton more for coal, perhaps, but the people willingly would pay this if peace were restored."

Speaking for an hour, Lesher defended the coal and iron police and cited innumerable reasons for his

TOWN FLEES FLOOD ONRUSH

DIRIGIBLE MAY CARRY FUEL TO POLE FLIERS

NOBILE'S AIRSHIP DUE IN ARCTIC

By ARNE KILDAL,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

OSLO, Norway, April 24.—While the world lauds their remarkable flight over the "top 'o the world," Capt. George H. Wilkins and Carl Ben Eielson seemed doomed today to remain at Green Harbor, Spitzbergen, until warm weather sets in.

In landing on the ice at Green Harbor after the short hop from Doedmansoeira (Dead Man's Island), where for five days they were isolated from the world by a snow storm of terrific proportions, the fliers' Lockheed-Vega monoplane was slightly damaged.

The damage to the plane is not believed to have been serious, but reports from Green Harbor indicate that the daring airmen were unable to make repairs with the materials at their disposal. It is also believed that the fliers could not procure sufficient fuel for the hop to this city, even if they could repair the plane.

ICE BALKS SHIPS

Spitzbergen, the ice-bound isle, which is farther north than any other in Europe, cannot be reached now by shipping.

However, the steamer Mina, owned by the Northern Exploration Company, and at present at Honningsvaag, Finmark, Norway, has received a telegraphic order to proceed as near Green Harbor, Spitzbergen, as possible to take Wilkins and Eielson and their airplane to Norway. The Mina left today and may reach the mouth of ice fjord about Saturday. The fliers are expected to reach Tromsoe, Norway, early next week.

There had been plans afoot to have Gen. Umberto Nobile's dirigible Italia, which is coming to Spitzbergen on the next hop of its Polar flight, bring a quantity of gasoline to Capt. Wilkins and his companion. It is not known whether this plan will be followed, in view of the fact that the plane is damaged.

It is probable that Gen. Nobile and Capt. Wilkins will meet at Spitzbergen. The Italia is coming to Kings Bay, which is only about five miles away from Green Harbor. Wilkins has indicated, according to reports reaching here, that he would like to give the Italian dirigible commander the benefit of some of the observations he made on his 2,200-mile flight from Point Barrow, Alaska.

WIRELESS GAVE OUT

Associated Press.

The New York Times printed a copyrighted dispatch from Capt. Wilkins today which said that the plane's wireless, although carefully tested in advance of the flight and husbanded until the actual start, gave out before the fliers landed after running "for many hours."

Capt. Wilkins attributed the failure of his plane to rise from the ice at Point Barrow on Friday, April 13 solely to that "unlucky" day. Two days later, after 48 hours' hard shoveling, the plane took the air and the fliers were on their way.

Their equipment included two rifles, seal spears and apparatus for retrieving deal seals from the water in case they were compelled to land and make their way to human habitations afoot.

AUTO KILLS SERGEANT, UNSCATHED IN WAR

Unscathed through the World War, Sergt. Martin J. Cavanaugh, 27, born and reared on the North Side, was brought back for burial to his old home district today, victim of an accident at Camp Leonard Wood.

Cavanaugh was killed instantly and four companions were seriously injured near Camp Wood, formerly Camp Meade, last Friday night when an automobile in which they were riding was struck by a Pennsylvania Railroad express train.

When the United States entered the World War, Cavanaugh, then a lad of 16, enlisted in the Regular Army, by "boosting" his age. He was a sergeant in Company A, Seventeenth Tank Battalion, and Company D, Eighth Infantry, during the war. He also served with the army of occupation in Germany. Upon his return home he re-enlisted and had been stationed at Camp Wood barracks.

Cavanaugh's mother died during his period of service. His father, Martin Cavanaugh, Sr., of Wilmerding, alone, is left of the family.

The body, accompanied by military escort, was taken to the undertaking rooms of Charles C. Reel, 215 East Ohio street. Funeral services will be held tomorrow morning in St. Peter's Catholic Church, West Ohio street and Sherman avenue.

company's action in mine eviction cases, but failed to explain why the Pittsburgh Coal Company abrogated the Jacksonville wage scale in 1925.

The only reason given for the company's action was that market conditions forced a close-down of the mines which were reopened on an open shop basis when the company officials decided it could not operate and make money under union conditions, he said.

OPERATORS' DAY

More than 50 ministers from all parts of Western Pennsylvania are taking part in the coal seminar under the auspices of the Department of Social Relations Congregational Educational Society and the Methodist Federation of Social Service. Coal operators, union officials and others interested in the bitter labor controversy are taking part. The operators are being given an opportunity to present their side today, following which a trip will be made to the field under the guidance of Prof. E. Colston Warne, of the University of Pittsburgh. Phillip Murray, international vice president of the United Mine Workers, and John Brophy, chairman of the National "Save the Union Committee," insurgent group in the mine union, have been invited to speak tomorrow.

Miss Emmaline Pitt, federal conciliation commissioner, also is scheduled to speak tomorrow. Each speaker is given an hour to present his views, during which time questions are permitted from the ministers.

A number of questions were fired at Lesher by ministers. One pointed query concerned the policy of the Pittsburgh Coal Company in the maintenance of a "private army." The Rev. Dr. W. B. Waltmire, of Chicago, asked about the state law authorizing the hiring of coal and iron police by individual concerns and Mr. Lesher endeavored to point out the necessity of these men.

"Don't you think that if the state provided its own policemen, it would be better?" was one of the queries.

"Of course," Lesher replied, "it would be infinitely better for us financially, but I doubt whether we would have any better protection or whether the men would be better policemen."

The roll-call at noon showed these couples had departed for other fields, having had their fill of continuous performances: F. A. parts carried to Greenley Island yesterday by the Ford plane.

International News Service.

LAKE STE AGNES, Que., April 24.—From miles around, hardy trappers trekked here today to await the arrival of the Bremen and the two German fliers who have been marooned with it on ice-bound Greenley Island since the plane ended its epochal 36-hour westward flight over the north Atlantic, 10 days ago, by burying its nose in the icy surface of the island reservoir.

Immediately after the arrival of the Ford relief plane at Greenley Island yesterday, activity began with a vengeance. No sooner had Maj. James Fitzmaurice, Bernt Balchen, Ernest Koeppen, the Junkers mechanic and the newspaperman who made the fourth of the relief party, debarked from the huge plane, than the repair parts for the Bremen were unloaded.

Koeppen then began the work of putting a new propeller on the plane. Then a new undercarriage was fitted to it. Meanwhile, Dr. Louis Cuisinier, who with "Duke" Schiller was the first to reach Greenley from the outside world, marshaled about 20 willing natives for the most difficult task at hand, the moving of the Bremen to the ice of Belle Isle Straits for the take-off.

Capt. Hermann Koehl will pilot the Bremen. He will be accompanied by Baron Ehrenfried von Huenefeld. Whether Maj. Fitzmaurice will come here in the Bremen also, or go in the Ford plane to aid Bernt Balchen in handling the immense tri-motored monoplane and then change back to the Bremen here for the triumphant flight to New York, is not known.

party leaders predicted a light vote due to the absence of contests.

A second curb-stone election was ordered in the Twenty-ninth District, Eleventh Ward, Euclid avenue and Kirkwood street, by Judges James H. Gray and Elder W. Marshall after a hearing.

When the regular board failed to appear this morning, one faction elected Marie McGarvey and another faction named William McNulty as judge. The woman assumed office with all the papaphernalia and refused to vacate.

The matter was threshed out in court, and it was decided that the election of the woman judge had been held before 8 o'clock, the legal hour for holding curb-stone elections. She was ordered to vacate and another election will be held.

VOLUNTEERS SOUGHT

Voters in the Fourteenth district, Twenty-first ward, were unable to cast their ballots today because four of the five election board for the district were convicted last week of making false returns in last November's election.

Frank Panner, 1329 Rush street, applied to Judge James H. Gray, sitting as a committing magistrate in Common Pleas Court, to appoint election officials. Judge Gray sought to locate public spirited citizens who would volunteer to serve.

Joseph E. Kline, judge for the district, was the prosecution's star witness at the trial of his four associates last week, all of whom were convicted. They are Clarence A. Bower aand James Williamson, inspectors, and Mrs. Anna Alston and Miss Clara A. Manes, clerks.

Despite the fact that it is a presidential year, with delegates to be named to the National conventions, there was little interest displayed in the election.

The biggest fight centered in the Thirty-fifth congressional district, where former Congressman James M. Magee is making a spirited contest to regain the Republican nomination which Harry A. Estep won from him two years ago. This congressional district also had a fight on for delegate to the Republican National convention. A second delegate fight is being staged in the Thirty-sixth district.

In the Twelfth legislative district, Helen Grimes has a fight on to be named Republican candidate for the general assembly. There is a large field of candidates. The Tenth legislative district fight also is interesting.

Find Error in Election Law Digest

Stating that there is "an unfortunate error" in the digest of election laws prepared by the League of Women Voters, Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong said today that copies of the laws have been sent to all election boards "for their guidance in any future statements that might be issued to the general public." The error referred to by the Commissioner is contained in Section 26 of the League statement. That section instructs the boards to place void and canceled ballots in the ballot boxes. The Commissioner said that the law requires spoiled and canceled ballots to be sealed in the wrapper and returned to the Commissioners' office, not placed in the ballot box.

FLOOD SWEEPS SOUTH; THOUSANDS FLEE

ALBANY, Ga., April 24.—(AP.)—Newton, county seat of Baker county, Ga., was being evacuated today as the inhabitants, fearing a repetition of the disastrous floods of 1925, sought higher ground at Camilla and other nearby points. The town was expected to be deserted by nightfall.

With a population of about 400 persons, Newton is situated on the Flint River 20 miles below here. The waters there were reported to be rising steadily, although the crest was reached here this morning.

In 1925 the place virtually was wiped out by the river, which was pushed from its banks by torrential rains.

1,000 FLEE HOME

ATLANTA, Ga., April 24.—(AP.)—Increasing reports of marooned towns, evacuated inhabitants and enormous damage to highways, crops and property trickled out of western Florida and southern Alabama today as mad streams from torrential rains of last week-end surged through the lower valleys of the coastal plain.

With more than 1,000 persons driven from their homes at Brewton, Ala., an important lumber community, a dozen other villages in the territory were isolated from the world with no news of their plight.

Estimates of damage ran into the millions, but only four persons were reported to have met death.

Brewton, nestling between the forks of Burnt Corn and Murder creeks, was engulfed by the waters which swept from the great rolling watershed to the north to roll down the principal streets. Reports placed the water from four to six feet deep in the business section of the town, with railway and highway communication broken.

Several hundred persons were said to be quartered in the Courthouse, while a relief committee ministered to the needs of the poor.

Fifty families were reported to have been driven from their homes at Flomaton, on the Escambia River, into which Burnt Cork and Murder creeks flow.

Six hundred inhabitants of the town of Caryville, Fla., on the Choctawhatchie River, driven out by the rising waters, were quartered at Bonifay, 50 miles away, while residents of the lowlands in a dozen river valleys in Georgia and Florida had taken to higher ground.

All telephone lines into Brewton and Evergreen, Ala., were down today. There was no news from Evergreen, situated on low country about 20 miles north of Brewton, and attempts were being made to establish land communication to ascertain conditions.

Greenville, Ala., 50 miles north of Brewton, reported that virtually all cotton and corn crops in the county had been destroyed. Every highway south of the city was broken and trains were at a standstill.

Commission -:- TRAFFIC CONGESTION RELIEF SOUGHT -:- Suggests Methods

BELLEFIELD AVENUE

In its report to City Council, the Better Traffic Committee proposes widening Bellefield avenue to 94 feet by taking six feet off the east sidewalk and 28 feet from the property of the University of Pittsburgh Cathedral of Learning on the west side, indicated here as the vacant ground at the left.

ELLSWORTH AVENUE

The Better Traffic Committee also would eliminate the dangerously narrow section of Ellsworth avenue between Aiken and Highland avenues by cutting off the sidewalks and extending the roadway to a width of 36 feet, giving space or vehicles between the car tracks and the curb.

CENTER AVENUE

At the intersection of Penn and Center avenues, in the heart of the East Liberty business district, it has been proposed to relieve traffic congestion, but plans are not definite. It has been suggested that the southeast corner be sheared off when the building there is razed.

GOLD MINES SEIZED BY BANDIT

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, April 24.—(AP.)—American Marines faced a hazardous and difficult task today in wresting from rebel General Augustino Sandino two American gold miners he was believed to have seized with their staffs. Fear was expresesd for the safety of the captured men.

W. J. Crampton, collecter of customs at Puerto Cabezas on the northeast coast, reported two mines near the headquarters of the Pis Pis River had been robbed by rebels.

While neither Marine headquarters nor the American legation received further information from Nicaraguan sources, it was believed that the La Luz Y Los Angeles and Bonanza mines were seized.

Those held prisoner by Sandino, as identified by D. Watson Fletcher of New York, one of the owners of the La Luz Y Los Angeles mine, are: Harry P. Amphlett, a British subject, superintendent; George B. Marshall of New York, assistant superintendent; L. B. Milberry of Woodsville, N. H.; Roy Burley, also an American, and Peter Petersen, a Norwegian, whose sister lives in Brooklyn.

GALLERY

The gallery stayed with the dancers all night and every once in a while there was a varsity—boom, boom, boom!—for a couple suspected of weakening, just a little, at the very opening. Here are shown young girls and boys crowding the rail early in the evening.

CHAMPEEN!

The champion, Al Bonach, and his new partner, Cora Deane, started in the endurance test, just as though Al wasn't the "champ."

WHOZIT?

The dance, of course, has its own little mystery. This is it, just as the dancers started the long first night's trek, behind masks.

FIRST AID

First and last aid, it seems, are necessary in a marathon dance. This medical staff's on duty. Right to left: Miss Susan Degman, Miss Mary Nipan, Miss Erma Hageter and Dr. D. E. Sable.

"BOSSY" GILLIS

The night is ended—but the music lingers on! "Bossy" Gillis had, you see, to do some stretching to shoot his starting gun—but it didn't shoot! The "Bad Boy" saved the day with a police whistle.

SLAIN IN CARNEGIE HOLDUP

Fatally wounded in a struggle with a Negro highwayman near his home last midnight, Michael Otyjika, 55, of 13 Oak alley, Carnegie, ran into his home, barricaded the door and then locked himself in a second floor clothes closet. He died there. His body was found by Lieut. Harry Keisling, of the Carnegie police force, who broke down the door.

Marshall Augustine, 24, of 7 Broadway avenue, Carnegie, is held by police in connection with the murder. Police say he first admitted that he had shot Otyjika, telling where he had thrown the revolver. Later he denied the charge. Police recovered the gun. While being questioned at the borough police station, Augustine attempted to escape, but was dragged back into his cell by Sergt. Joseph Chappel.

The holdup occurred within 50 feet of the victim's home. Three shots were fired at Otyjika. One of the bullets shattered the second floor window of the residence within a few inches of Elizabeth Allen, 6, a Negro, whose family occupies the second floor quarters.

Otyjika, a laborer, was returning from work. He was carrying a hammer which he wielded during the battle with the highwaymen. A deep laceration was found on Augustine's head, police said.

TREMORS WIPE OUT CORINTH

ATHENS, April 24.—(AP.)—The devastated city of Corinth was rocked by two more earth shocks this morning, and Corinthians must seek homes elsewhere.

Four Greek ministers, who went to the stricken district, returned today and said they considered the city ruined beyond repair. Reconstruction on the same site was considered impracticable, especially since this was the second time in 70 years that Corinth had been destroyed.

The damage was estimated at many millions. The death toll was set at 13.

The government sent food, tents and two steamers to serve as a temporary refuge for the homeless and destitute.

Gen. Metaxas, minister of communications, said that nothing but a heap of ruins remained at Corinth. Not a single house could be repaired and those houses which threatened to collapse must be razed immediately.

Many Corinthians desire to settle elsewhere and they will be granted free transportation by railroad.

The American Red Cross offered tents and medical supplies for 15,000 persons.

A submarine volcano like that of Santorin in the Cyclades is believed to have formed in the lagoon of Mesolonghi, which forms part of the Gulf of Patras.

The Metropolitan of Corinth and the Archbishop of Athens issued an appeal to the Greek people.

Help! Help! Help! Operator Wires; Is Buried Alive

ATHENS, Greece, April 24.—(AP.)—As the earthquake laid waste to Corinth, the telegraph operator there clicked out over and over again without ceasing the words:

"Help! Help! Help! All is lost."

Remaining heroically at his post in order to acquaint the outside world of Corinth's plight, the operator a few minutes later was buried alive by the collapse of the building in which he worked.

A ZEROZONE In EVERY Home!

In the Row of Houses Shown in the Photograph Below--- ONE SOLID ROW---26 Homes ---Every Single Home Has

Zerozone
Electric Refrigeration

These Homes Are Located on Brandon Road Between Kleber Street and Pennock Road In the Brighton Road District

It Is Most Unusual---Something Unique---To Have the Same Make Electric Refrigeration Installed In EVERY Home In One Solid Row---It Speaks Volumes for ZEROZONE!

EVERY ZEROZONE sold is a silent salesman of other ZEROZONES. After the first ZEROZONE in the row of houses pictured above had been sold it was not long until ZEROZONE Number Two had been sold on the strength of the performance of Number One, and now every single home of the twenty-six—the entire solid row—is equipped with ZEROZONE.

ZEROZONES are popular not only with home owners, but also with builders. Many Pittsburgh Apartments are ZEROZONE-equipped, because ZEROZONES are so dependable. Throughout Pittsburgh those who want the finest electric refrigeration—something out of the ordinary, built to endure, actually LIFETIME refrigeration—are turning to ZEROZONE, the electric refrigeration that satisfies.

ZEROZONES are made according to the precision method of manufacture, that is why they are so satisfactory. Every single part of the machine is subjected to the minutest scrutiny; the most careful, painstaking, individual inspection after assembly makes certain that every machine functions perfectly as the makers intended it to do. There is no guesswork about ZEROZONE.

ZEROZONE stands out from among the many kinds of electric refrigeration. We tested it thoroughly. We subjected ZEROZONE to every refrigerative and mechanical test our engineers could devise (and they have had years of experience on the big electric refrigeration plants in our stores), yet ZEROZONE never faltered, even though we used it much more severely than it would ever be used in a home.

Good Foods and Efficient Electric Refrigeration Go Hand in Hand —or Should!

That's why DONAHOE'S are selling ZEROZONE. We were pioneers in electric refrigeration. Over fifteen years ago the first modern electric refrigerating plant to be used in a Pittsburgh meat market was installed in our Market Street Store. And ever since we have used electric refrigeration.

After 15 Years of Usage We Should Know Something About Electric Refrigeration —and we honestly believe we do. The great success we have had, for many years, in keeping tremendous quantities of perishable foods in good condition often made us wish that our customers could enjoy the same facility—dependable electric refrigeration—that's why we are selling ZEROZONE.

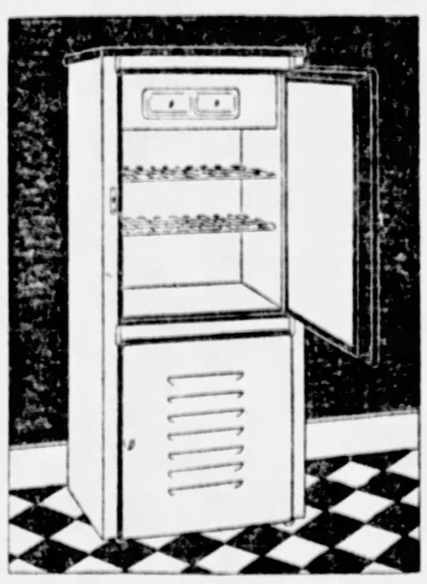
Just Received! The Newest Black-and-White All Porcelain



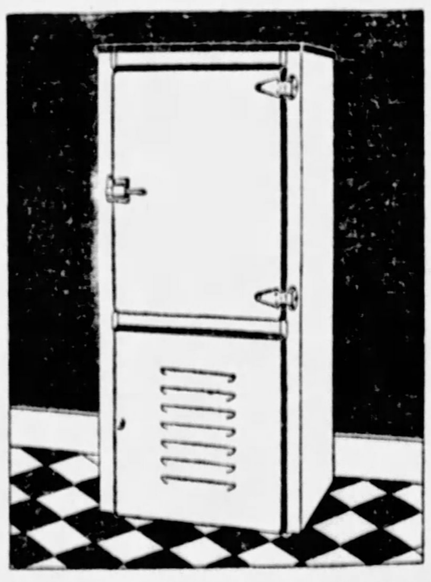
ZEROZONE

---Crysteel Model No. B5

—a Beauty! One-piece seamless, sanitary interior with 5 cubic feet net food storage capacity; will make 42 standard ice cubes between meals. Has insulation of pure cork board. Unbelievably quiet. The glistening, frost-white exterior, with attractive black trim around the top edge will add tone to any kitchen color scheme. With compressor in cabinet—completely installed—priced low at

$245.00

When refrigerating unit is installed in basement the lower compartment of the cabinet may be converted into a handy vegetable storage space by installing a special porcelain lining. The cost is small.



ZEROZONE Preserves The Fine Flavor of Your Food

That flash of flavor that makes your food so enjoyable is mighty elusive. Let the temperature of the food rise too high and flavor flits away. ZEROZONE holds flavor — it gives you greater enjoyment of your foods.

ZEROZONE Is The Constant Guardian of Your Family's Health

ZEROZONE will keep your food in the safety zone. An unexpected rise in temperature catches many a family unawares—foods spoil—health is jeopardized. ZEROZONE is constantly on guard—for a lifetime! Convenient, simple and absolutely DEPENDABLE.

Our Own Competent Refrigeration Engineers Make All ZEROZONE Installations

The same men who installed the remarkable electric refrigeration plant in DONAHOE'S Fifth Avenue Store will install your ZEROZONE. These men are ENGINEERS; whatever your refrigeration problem may be, they can solve it. Here at DONAHOE'S we KNOW how foods should be kept—our knowledge and experience is at your disposal.

Convenient Payments May Be Arranged ---As Long As 24 Months to Pay

Don't touch your savings—pay for your ZEROZONE out of income. Our payment plan enables you to divide the amount so it will hardly be missed. Come in and see our display of ZEROZONES ranging in price from $198 to $700. Careful comparison will mean you'll buy a ZEROZONE.

EXPRESS BY AIR STARTS MAY 1

Air express service will be available to Pittsburghers May 1, according to announcement of the American Railway Express Company that its officials have signed a contract with Clifford Ball, air mail contractor between Pittsburgh and Cleveland.

The contract was signed by Charles W. Robie, vice-president, of New York, and Mr. Ball. Air express shipments will be taken on here and placed on the transcontinental airmail to all cities now receiving air mail service. Planes arrive here at 1:45 p. m. from Cleveland and leave Pittsburgh at 2:30 p. m.

Rates from Pittsburgh to Cleveland and Chicago will be 35 cents a quarter pound, 50 cents to Dallas, Tex., 65 cents to Denver and San Francisco.

TAKEN FOR RIDE, NEGRO DIES

Believed by police to have been "taken for a ride," C. W. Leitner, 31, a Negro, of 1234 Wylie avenue, was found dying in an automobile parked in Breckenridge street early today. He died a short time later in the Montefiore Hospital. He had been shot in the breast. Leitner was found by Washington Childs, a Negro, of 2550 Vera way. No revolver was found. Leitner had $39 in his pocket when examined at the hospital.

WRONG ELLWOOD CITY MAN RECEIVES THREAT

ELLWOOD CITY, Pa., April 24.—The wrong man got a threatening letter, supposedly from youths held in connection with the robbery of the August Miller grocery, police say. The letter went to a watchman at the Standard Engineering plant, but he didn't see the robbery or report it. This was done by the night foreman. Nick Columbus, arrested in the robbery, is said to have confessed.

ADVERTISING CLUB OPENS EXHIBIT

Modernistic art has not yet obtained a stranglehold on commercial illustrating, but is being rationalized and adapted with novel effect, according to the great display at the First Advertising Exhibition held by the Pittsburgh Advertising Club in the Chamber of Commerce auditorium. The show opened today with hundreds of examples of fine printing, engraving and merchandise illustrating. It will continue until 6 p. m. tomorrow.

Department stores, manufacturers, advertising agencies and nearly every form of enterprise in the Pittsburgh district which utilizes advertising are represented.

The exhibit includes "copy" used in six branches of the advertising business—national newspapers, magazine, direct-to-mail, trade and technical publications and window displays. These are separated in 14 classifications. Certificates of award and honorable mention will be granted in each class.

The judges are Mrs. William A. McMaster, representing the Congress of Women's Clubs; Albert C. Daschbach, Rotary Club; Reid W. Elton, Chamber of Commerce; Christian J. Walter, Associated Artists of Pittsburgh, and James C. Boudreau, Board of Public Education.

4 WOMEN, MAN ASK DIVORCE

Charging that her husband deserted her 16 years ago, Mrs. Catherine Harlan of 433 Dunlap street, today brought suit for divorce in Common Pleas Court from Arthur W. Harlan of Glenwood.

Paul Thomas of 2147 Tecky avenue sued Barbara Thomas of 2133 Geyer avenue, charging desertion. They were married in September, 1922.

Estella Hoffman Forrest, giving her address as the Fort Pitt Hotel, asked for a divorce from Charles M. Forrest of 1814 East Park way, charging desertion. They were married in 1918.

Helen Graham Clager of 236 Wenston street asked a divorce from Albert Clager of Lisbon, O., charging desertion. They married in 1922.

Cruelty was charged by Mabel Rosenberry of 5549 Hi s street in suing Chauncey C. Rosenberry for divorce. They were married three years ago.

MT. OLIVER OFFICER HELD FOR ASSAULT

Sergeant Walter Minick, of the Mt. Oliver police force will be arraigned before Alderman Albert J. Henning, of 1930 Brownsville road tomorrow night on assault and battery charges in connection with an alleged attack upon Owen L. Berry, of 167 Penn avenue, Mt. Oliver. The officer is alleged to have struck Berry with a mace when the latter is said to have resisted arrest March 26. The charge was preferred against the officer last night after Berry had been fined $10 by Burgess John Wagner, of Mt. Oliver, on a disorderly conduct charge.

BUNGALOW AT TECH OPEN FOR INSPECTION

CLEARING HOUSE TO USE DAYLIGHT SAVING TIME

Daylight saving time, effective next Sunday will be observed by the Pittsburgh Clearing House, C. D. Fogle, manager, announced yesterday following a meeting of the Clearing House Association. The association adopted resolutions setting the summer business one hour ahead. A copy of the resolutions was sent to member and non-member bank and trust companies.

New and Special!—

Misses' Coats of Wear Weave Type

$39.50

This event of tomorrow is one which pays a compliment to young women who are looking for uncommonly handsome, youthful travel and service coats at a moderate price, for it was specially planned for them and the coats made according to their liking.

We selected the smart imported and domestic coatings—tweeds and bold and neat patterned novelties—and had them made into styles that bespeak the very spirit of youth. They are straightline coats, furless at the neckline and with Johnny or scarf collars, and cuffs of fur—speckled-trout coney, ombre lapin, Wallaby and American opossum.

See them tomorrow—they're different!

CONTEST LACK KILLS STATE PRIMARY INTEREST

SMITH LEADER CLAIMS STATE DELEGATES

By WILLIAM B. BROWN,
International News Service.

HARRISBURG, April 24.—(INS.)—Although Pennsylvania today selects its delegates to the national conventions of the two major political parties, those chosen will not be bound to any particular presidential candidate.

In addition the voters today are denoting their choice for nominees to the United States senate, Congress, state treasurer, auditor general, judge of the Superior Court, 25 state senators, 208 members of the House and party committees.

Selection of the delegates to the Republican national convention has attracted but little attention not only because of the lack of interest but lack of contests as well. In addition to the 72 district delegates the state will be entitled to seven delegates-at-large. There are few contests in the districts for delegates and as only seven filed for the at-large places their selection is assured.

The Pennsylvania Republican delegation will go to the convention uninstructed, in accordance with the policy of Andrew W. Mellon, Secretary of the Treasury, and his nephew, W. L. Mellon, the Republican state chairman. Political leaders have not attempted to discount a strong Hoover-for-President sentiment in the state, but Republican leaders want to be in position to back any candidate at the convention.

On the Democratic side efforts to sidestep sentiment for Gov. Al Smith have been less successful and have resulted in a more spirited fight, with some uncertainty regarding just where some of the delegate candidates stand in regard to the candidacy of the New York leader.

Joseph V. Guffey, Democratic national committeeman, has claimed 60 of Pennsylvania's 76 votes for Smith. Smith opposition, led by Vance C. McCormick, Harrisburg publisher, discount Guffey's claims. In 1924 the high tide of the McCormick strength for William G. McAdoo was 73½ votes and the anti-Smith wing claims an equal voting possibility at the Houston convention.

In both parties a number of the delegates are pledged to support the popular choice of their respective districts. None of the presidential candidates filed petitions in Pennsylvania so that no names will appear on the ballot. Popular choice in any district can be evidenced only by the names being written into the ballot, never a widely followed practice. The few names that will be written in will be at best only morally binding on the delegate candidates.

Backers of the Republican independent candidates for state-wide offices today refused to make definite claims. The entire Republican organization is supporting David A. Reed for nomination as United States Senator, Auditor General Edward Martin for state treasurer; Charles A. Waters for auditor general, and William D. Porter for judge of the Superior Court. The possibility of an upset for any of those places was considered slight about the capitol.

Democratic candidates for the state-wide nomination are unopposed.

Only two of the 36 Congressmen are not seeking another term. John M. Morin, Pittsburgh, who had threatened to become a candidate for the United States Senate when Mellon support for his re-election was withdrawn, failed to file. In the Berks-Lehigh district, Robert Grey Bushong, the present Republican incumbent, is supporting Abraham H. Rothermel, a Democrat.

In 19 of the districts the present Republican incumbents have no opposition, but in several of the others the contests promise to be spirited. From a point of public interest the fight of Mrs. Gifford Pinchot to defeat Louis T. McFadden, the present congressman from the Fifteenth District, leads. The contest there has been marked by sharp exchanges between the two, both at times indulging in personalities.

Another congressional fight, which the capitol watches today with interest, is that in Schuylkill between Cyrus M. Palmer, the incumbent, and former Congressman George F. Brumm. Palmer is backed by Paul W. Houck, chairman of the State Workman's Compensation Board, while Brumm is aligned with former State Treasurer Charles A. Snyder. It is a fight for control between Houck and Snyder, not a new thing, but one that always attracts state-wide attention.

There are Democratic contests in 15 districts, but in four others there are no Democratic candidates.

REED TO SEEK DELEGATES IN W. VA.

WASHINGTON, April 24.—(INS.)—Senator James A. Reed (D.), of Missouri, will enter the West Virginia primary and present a complete slate of delegates, it was officially announced here today.

Reed's name will be filed some time between now and April 28, the last filing date, and the senator will embark tomorrow on another speaking trip into the state, with dates at Lewisburg April 25 and Huntington April 26.

The decision to go into West Virginia was taken to mean that the Missourian has no intention of letting the nomination go to Gov. Al Smith by default.

Reed probably will make a contest for the delegates from Virginia, Florida and the District of Columbia, too, it was stated by F. J. Prince, one of his campaign managers in charge of Washington headquarters.

EAST LIVERPOOL, O., SLAYER HELD INSANE

EAST LIVERPOOL, O., April 24.—Carl O. Kohl, 19, who confessed to police that he shot and killed his neighbor, Daniel Ruff, 78, at East Rochester, last Tuesday, "because some one told him to do it," was today held insane and ordered committed to the State Hospital for the Insane at Massillon, where he formerly had been a patient.

TECH DRAMA SCHOOL HONORS SHAKESPEARE

The three hundred and sixty-fourth anniversary of the birth of William Shakespeare was observed yesterday by students of the drama school at Carnegie Institute of Technology. A reading was given and a wreath was placed on the Shakespear statue in front of Carnegie Institute. The services were first held 20 years ago.

COMMITS FORGERY TO FINANCE WEDDING

ROMNEY, W. Va., April 24.—Forgery in order to finance a wedding was the explanation of Ernest T. Boley, of Hampshire county, when arrested here. He is charged with forging the name of C. N. Newkirk, of Berkley county, for whom he formerly worked.

DOG SLASHES FACE OF GREENSBURG BOY

GREENSBURG, Pa., April 24.—Twelve stitches were required to close the wounds in the face of Tommy Lisbon, 4, of Whitney, when he was bitten by a dog.

CONNELLSVILLE ITALIAN CHURCH BUYS CEMETERY

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., April 24.—In order to have its own burying ground, the congregation of St. Rita Italian Catholic Church has purchased 23 acres of land on the Connellsville-Uniontown highway. It will be dedicated Memorial Day.

Physicians Advise Thin Blooded People To Eat More Liver

Hundreds of Thousands Eating Liver to Get Rich Red Blood and Strengthen Vital Forces

Hundreds of physicians in New York and other cities who have tested and prescribed a diet of beefs liver in cases of poverty of the blood or anemia are now prescribing a preparation called Hemo-Liver which is made by a scientific process from fresh beefs livers.

By this process the vital elements that are obtained by eating liver are extracted and put up in liquid form, which is very palatable and pleasant to the taste.

Hemo-Liver is full of these potent substances, extracted from liver, which create rich red blood and strengthen the vital forces of men and women—and by taking a tablespoonful three times a day you'll get as much of the blood and health-creating substances as you would get from the eating of much liver

How a man and his corpuscles may look when his blood is thin and watery and the chance that takes place when his blood is rich and red.

Every progressive druggist sells Hemo-Liver in a big 12-ounce bottle that will last eight days.

"Men and women who are suffering from lowered vitality, general weakness, overwork, nervous breakdown or anemia can put their faith in Hemo-Liver. For feeble old people, girls 13 to 18 and in convalescence it won't fail. It strengthens the nerves, increases the red blood cells, promotes health and rebuilds vigor and energy so quickly that often physicians are astonished."

Why not get a big bottle of Hemo-Liver today—eight days' treatment—and if after you have taken one bottle you don't say Hemo-Liver is the greatest health builder you ever heard of—get your money back.

You can get Hemo-Liver at May's Drug Stores.

The Plays and Players — THE PITTSBURGH SUN-TELEGRAPH — TUESDAY, APRIL 24, 1928

The Stage and Screen

"Young Blood," Sophisticated Comedy, Presented In Pitt By George Sharp Players

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

The James Forbes comedy of youth, underlined with the more serious note of parental responsibility, "Young Blood," gave the George Sharp Players in the Pitt last night opportunity for heavier work than that required in their two previous plays this season. To say that they did well in the parts allotted them is not to say that the play itself is altogether satisfactory for stock presentation or for the intimate relationship that exists between those on the stage and those who make up the kind of audiences the Pitt attracts at present.

"Young Blood," having a theme that is rather delicate, is difficult to make altogether pleasing to those not thoroughly sophisticated. It deals with an intrigue based on human weakness with frankness that seems unnecessary except to make a play and without evident purpose aside from that of achieving the theatrical.

From the acting standpoint the greater credit goes to Gus Forbes and Anne Forrest. The former, as the father of a youth whose chances to progress are hampered by the ideas of the elder man that his money can make up for personal interest and attention, gives a characterization that is marked by dignity. Miss Forrest gives an eminently pleasing portrayal of the young girl with the ways of a flapper and the instincts of a most motherly matron. She it is who points out to the father his real duty toward his boy and who, herself, fights to keep him from ruining himself and wins against the "woman in the case," a servant in the home of the young man.

In the latter character Ralph Morgan is miscast. It is not a part for him and in it he both underacts and overacts. Mabel Kroman is convincing as a scheming siren and Gordon Anderson gives a nice balance to a juvenile role. Matthew Smith, Jr., and Robert Lawrence do well in subordinate parts.

AD CLUB'S EXHIBIT BEGINS HERE TODAY

The first annual advertising exhibit of the Pittsburgh Advertising Club will be held today and tomorrow in the Chamber of Commerce auditorium. Advertising prepared and issued by local agencies during the last year will be on display. The exhibits represent an outlay of more than $1,000,000. J. C. McQuiston is in charge of the exhibits.

Prince

WALTER HAMPDEN

Mr. Hampden in the character of the Danish prince in "Hamlet," presented in the Alvin last night and not to be repeated.

WEIRD HUMANS IN ALDINE

A strange company of human freaks bring a circus atmosphere to the Aldine stage this week. There's the fat lady, the giant, the spider boy, an armless wonder, a fellow who swallows swords, another who eats fire and some others, including the feature, Albert-Alberta, half man and half woman. They're all on display in an act titled "Coney Island." In addition there are four other entertaining vaudeville acts. Ferris and Ellis mix comedy Italian dialect and grand opera. Demarest and Deland amuse with an act of piano and vocal music. The male member of the team makes the ivories speak comedy as well as melody. Cartmell-Harris & Co. present three brief laugh skits, featuring dance steps. The 72-year-old stepper with the troupe gets a big hand. The stage show opens with Evans and Perez showing skill in difficult balancing and aerial feats. The photoplay attraction is "The Sporting Age," with Belle Bennett featured.

"CHICAGO," PENN FILM, IMPRESSIVE BURLESQUE

"Chicago," transferred to the screen from the play of the same name by Maurine Watkins, in which Francine Larrimore, played here in the role of Roxie Hart, "jazz murderess," is the feature photoplay in the Penn, with Phyllis Haver, giving a good characterization of Roxie. It follows the text of the play with fidelity, which is more than can be said of many pictures taken from the stage, and proves to be impressive even though a burlesque. Victor Varconi, as the husband of the baby-faced slayer, is not quite the boob the same character was in the play and makes good as heroic type of deluded but loyal spouse. The courtroom scene is more elaborate than the stage could present and the broad travesty it develops is the cause of much laughter. Miss Haver is effective in her acting as well as being good to look at. Presented as "Rio Romance," the stage acts include the Cansinos, dancing specialists; Joe Penner, comedian; Paul Kieman, who sings; more dancing, by Amata Grassi; music, by the Tamaulipas Troubadours, and steps by the Lenora Girls. Orchestral music and other screen offerings round out a good bill.

OLYMPIC PHOTOPLAY IS "THE WHIP WOMAN"

"The Whip Woman," featuring Jack Dempsey's wife, Estelle Taylor, is the current picture in the Olympic. The story concerns the romance between a Hungarian peasant girl and a young nobleman. The cast includes Antonio Moreno, Lowell Sherman and Hedda Hopper. The Vitaphone program offers Freda and Palace, in comedy and songs; Jack Haley and Flo McFadden, in a laugh skit, and a playlet, "The Bookworm."

Shakespeare's Natal Day Is Celebrated by Hampden With a Quick-Fire "Hamlet"

By GEORGE SEIBEL.

PITTSBURGHERS had an unusual opportunity yesterday to celebrate Shakespeare's birthday by attending a performance of his greatest tragedy by America's most eminent actor, "Hamlet" was given by Walter Hampden at the Alvin Theater. It is at least five years since he has visited Pittsburgh, for he has come into his own, and people have had to go to New York in order to see him. Which makes the present engagement all the more notable—besides the fact that he brings Shakespeare, Ibsen and Browning in his repertoire.

GEORGE SEIBEL

Mr. Hampden's interpretation of the melancholy Dane is not new to our city. But he has deepened and enriched the Hamlet of his last appearance, as every actor of intellect and intelligence would—and these qualities blend in Hampden to the height of art. He has a sonorous voice and he reads well. He has the stage presence that justifies Ophelia's words, "the glass of fashion and the mold of form." And the poetic mysticism that broods over Hamlet's soul there is hardly any one else since Booth to body forth so well. These considerations render it all the more regrettable that the tempo of the acting has been accelerated in a measurable degree, making some of the scenes as superficial as if it were a movie. This has the additional defect that the actors have no time to think of what has gone before—their moods are of the moment only—thus Laertes in the last scene is as jaunty as if there hadn't been two funerals in the family just a few days previously.

Mr. Hampden's Hamlet is kept in a natural key, and seldom reaches after keen emotional or high tragic climaxes. He observes his own advice to the Players. But in the Mousetrap scene, in the closet of the queen, in the graveyard, and in the fight with Laertes he shows the mettle of his pasture, with outbursts of noble fire. He has less humor than Sothern, less introspection than Mantell—he is a modern, nervous, quick-fire Hamlet who feels that "the readiness is all."

The supporting company is evenly balanced, with few high spots. Norman Hammond as the King is quite conventional — why doesn't some one some time play the King as a handsome dark villain who could really plot a crime and fascinate a queen? Usually the murderous monarch looks like the King of Diamonds. Mabel Moore as Ophelia was unconvincing in the mad scenes, and Cecil Yapp as Polonius and the First Gravedigger sacrificed much of the humor to the tempo. Edwin Cushman as the Ghost and Caroline Meade as Gertrude were adequate, but a slight unearthly glow might make that Ghost more like a ghost and a slightly worried look might make Gertrude more like a mother whose son is out of his mind.

The stage settings were of the Gordon-Craigy type which Claude Bragdon does very well, but the best of them is the platform of Elsinore. The stage management generally was smooth, but the curtain might have been dropped on "The rest is silence," as there is no need of hearing out the body when there is a curtain, and the funeral cortege was unimpressively managed. Despite these shortcomings Mr. Hampden's "Hamlet" is about the best we have, and was a worthy observance for Shakespeare's birthday.

ROSE MIDGETS IN HARRIS

Ike Rose's 25 midgets give a revue of song, dance and comedy as their contribution to this week's vaudeville show in the Harris. The little folks get quite a bit of applause. One of the brief spots on the bill is Alf Grant, an oldtimer, who chatters and sings in a rapid-fire manner. Ferrell and Taylor, a couple of blackface comedians, assisted by a feminine player, give a skit that has to do with spiritualists and spirits. They hand out a lot of buffoonery. A couple of juveniles—a girl, Rita, and a boy, do rather well with patter and song. Dagmar comes along with a bag of magical tricks—some new, most of them old. Flags of all nations, with a big Old Glory, are waved in the end. The photoplay—of ordinary merit—is "Beyond London Lights." It has its romance and its melodramatic moments. An organ logue and short screen entertainment complete the bill.

DIX, IN 'SPORTING GOODS,' WINS LAUGHS IN STANLEY

Richard Dix and "Sporting Goods," featured film attraction, are a merry portion of the Stanley bill. Mixing high and low comedy as well as straight farce, with a romantic angle, the picture drags a little in laying the necessary foundation for the succeeding hilarious sequences. "Sporting Goods" gets into swift action as the finale nears and fun is rampant. There is a suggestion of slapstick technique in some of the sequences, but a poker game reaches a high farcical plane, and would redeem the picture if the rest were bad, which it decidedly is not. The plot is the old one of mixed identity, with new angles, with Dix as a sporting goods salesman mistaken for a millionaire. As usual, he acts his part well. Gertrude Olmstead pleases as the girl and Ford Sterling registers 100 in a straight comedy role. Marty White, comedian, is the high spot of the stage bill, which also includes a couple of songs by Lady Tsen Mei, Chinese flapper, well liked; songs by the Three-Co-eds, skillful eccentric dance by Morosco and Daniels, blues songs by Hazel Romaine and steps by the Kaufmann Girls, all presented as "Around the Clock." Orchestral and other features help to make the bill high class.

LENORE ULRIC IN DAVIS

When a star of the legitimate stage deigns to twinkle for a few weeks in vaudeville, personality and acting ability are usually obscured by a vapid and trashy play—but it is different with Lenore Ulric in the Davis this week. Michael Arlen, who won high place with "The Green Hat," has provided Miss Ulric with a tense little drama called "A Legend of London," combining epigram and emotion in effective proportions. It opens with a cynical note; it closes with a flash of true pathos. And it even has an element of tragedy and mystery, along with its deft literary quality. Miss Ulric is fortunate to have found such a vehicle, and Mr. Arlen is fortunate to have found such an interpreter for the wife in this triangle. With sure psychology she runs the gamut from boredom to passion, and shows the tension of the neurotic woman rising to final release in the surprise at the end. Altogether it is a vivid little etching in which dramatist and player share honors. And the entire vaudeville bill forms a worthy setting for this gem. Bert Hanlon has a series of the funniest and newest jokes to tell, and his song, "Could Edison Do It?" is loaded with laughter to the muzzle. Then there is a marvelous troupe of Chinese contortionists and jugglers, whose novel act is brought to a "hair-raising" finish in which the entire troupe of four are suspended by the pigtail of one. Jane Green, garbed in blue, sings catching ballads with good voice and good humor. Vic Burns and Adelaide Wilson extract many laughs from a doctor-and-nurse skit, and the Mathews Trio do some dancing comedy that clicks finely. On the screen there is a pleasant satire on divorce and alimony, "On to Reno," in which Marie Prevost shows she hasn't forgotten her aquatic training. And the news weekly brings the first pictures of the fliers on Greenley Island.

"WINGS," AIR PICTURE THIRD WEEK IN NIXON

The spectacular picture, "Wings," which presents a phase of the World War from the aviation angle, opened its third week in the Nixon yesterday. The photoplay is being shown twice daily.

OURSLER MADE CARNEGIE OFFICER

John S. Oursler was elected vice president of the Carnegie Steel Company yesterday at the annual election of the board of directors, it was announced by W. G. Clyde, president of the company. Mr. Oursler succeeds I. Lamont Hughes, who last week was elected a vice president of the United States Steel Corporation with offices in New York, although remaining a Carnegie director.

Oursler has been general superintendent of the Homestead Steel Works. Ralph H. Watson, assistant general superintendent of the Homestead plant, will succeed Oursler.

STAGE AND SCREEN

FEATURE IN GRAND IS "OLD IRONSIDES"

"Old Ironsides," the Paramount picture based on historical events in the early Naval history of the United States, is the screen attraction this week in the Grand. The highlight is the battle between the frigate Constitution and the pirates of Tripoli. There is a love theme interwoven—that of the romance between a young seaman, played by Charles Farrell, and a ship owner's daughter, essayed by Esther Ralston. The cast includes Wallace Beery and George Bancroft, rough-and-ready seamen, who can fight and make you laugh. The film was seen last fall as a road show in the Nixon. Short screen entertainment is on the bill.

"BAND BOX REVUE" ACADEMY BURLESQUE

"Band Box Revue," this week's burlesque in the Academy, returns with new features. The comedy is taken care of by Jack Erickson and Al Flatico, aided by Clyde Shafer and Hal Ford. They appear in burlesques of "White Cargo" adn "The Hairy Ape." Sheikee is featured as a special dancer and she also offers vocal numbers. Little Annie Propp, a dancing soubret, does a little of everything, from specialties to directing her six saxophone players. Ruth Sunny Darling sings "Sugar Baby." Among the skits are "Foolish Questions" and "Life in Jail." The musical program includes "Honey Lou From Honolulu," and "Yankee Rose."

PROTEAN SPECIALTY FEATURE IN SHERIDAN

Charles T. Aldrich, in "Protean Surprises," heads the vaudeville in the Sheridan Square and his novel act does "surprise" many. The Sub-Deb Dancers, featuring Eugenie Le Blanc, offer tap dances and other steps. Comedy and song are included in the offering of Eddie Cole and George Snyder, appearing in a skit, "The Director." Dale and Fulker, girls, play the violin and sing as "Imps in Satin." The canine players listed as Gordon's terriers present various tricks, including dancing. On the screen Marie Prevost is seen in a comedy, "On to Reno."

CLOSE BABY FARM

7 INFANTS DIE FROM DISEASE

International News Service

BAYONNE, N. J., April 24.—The private baby farm of Mrs. Lillian Augat here was ordered closed today by Dr. William Brooke, Bayonne health officer, following his discovery that seven children taken from the place in the last 10 days have died.

All the infants died of one disease, acute inflammation of the intestines, Dr. Brooke said. He announced he had given orders that nine other babies at the farm who are reported seriously ill of the same disease be restored to their parents.

Two of the sitting infants are children of Mrs. Augat. She said she believed the disease was brought into her home by Robert Jenkins, 4, the first baby to die. When their illness became serious, the babies, all 1 year old, John Gianpanno, who later died were taken to an isolation hospital.

An autopsy conducted by the Hudson county physician's office brought no proof that the disease was infectious or contagious. Physicians were puzzled by the persistence of the disease. Dr. Brooke reported that the baby farm was clean, in good condition, and all that is required by city ordinance.

The infants who died, in addition to the Jenkins child, were Paul Hellman, 5 months; Alfred Williams, 8 months; Richard Gelkans, 1 year; Gloria Grant, 18 months, and Joseph Kerry, 1 year.

EVERY Musical Show in New York uses Lux to double the life of stockings

Silk and net costumes, organdie hats, extra-long chiffon stockings—all must be sparkling—to make this gay chorus from Ziegfeld's "Rosalie" so truly adorable! (Marilyn Miller, center.)

STOCKINGS that shimmer and glisten in the brilliant glow of the footlights—what critical scrutiny they receive! What strenuous wear!

Often the stockings worn by a chorus must stand harder wear in a single night than those of the average woman receive in weeks.

Yet every woman knows what a problem it is to keep stockings new-looking—and how vitally important, when stockings represent such a large part of her clothes budget!

New York's big musical shows and famous successes face this same problem, magnified many times over.

Wardrobe mistresses have to keep thousands of dollars' worth of stockings in perfect condition. And make them last!

To find the safest way to wash silk stockings, different methods—various soaps—have been tried.

And the fact is disclosed that stockings washed in Lux wear twice as long!

Twice as many performances from Lux-washed stockings as from those laundered by other methods!

Lux means money saved!

This means so much in dollars and cents to the producers of New York's dazzling musical shows, that each one has standardized the method of washing the stockings of the cast.

So the wardrobe mistress of every musical show in New York—without exception—now specifies Lux for washing silk and chiffon stockings. They buy it in the familiar blue package you yourself buy—Lux is never sold in bulk.

MRS. BEATRICE CONIFF

wardrobe mistress with Shubert productions. Lux cleanses thousands of dollars' worth of stockings for Shubert choruses. "We would use Lux if it cost $1.00 a box," says their General Manager, "for Lux cuts stocking bills in half."

Mrs. Coniff adds—"Garter runs are more to be feared than any other stocking trouble. Anything which weakens the stockings must be avoided. That is why I see that our laundresses use only Lux. We get twice as many performances from Lux-washed stockings!"

FAY ADLER AND TED BRADFORD

sensational dancers with the "Merry Malones." Ballet frills and satin skirts, alike, are kept new-looking with Lux, in the Cohan productions. No hosiery gets harder wear than the stockings danced in night after night—yet every musical show doubles the life of its stockings, saves money, by cleansing with safe, pure Lux.

WOMEN EVERYWHERE are using Lux for silk stockings, as do wardrobe mistresses. Women know rubbing with cake soap may fade colors—that many soaps (whether flakes, chips or cakes) contain harmful alkali that weakens fibres. So they make sure of extra wear with Lux.

HOLDS CONCERTS MAY BE BUSINESS

"The question is not so much whether symphonic music is religious in character, but whether the Pittsburgh Symphony Society was conducting a business in giving a concert on Sunday," declared Chief Justice William D. Porter, of the Superior Court, at the conclusion this morning of the argument on the appeal of the Sunday concert case.

"There are many religious sects. Some hold that music is a necessary part of their service. Others maintain that the pouring of libations is important. But the point in this case is whether the Blue Law act of 1794 is capable of such construction as has been maintained in this case."

The chief justice said this in halting the argument of Attorney John M. Freeman, who had begun a recital of facts to uphold his contention that symphonic music on Sunday was a religious service.

Attorney John Robert Jones, representing the Sabbath Association in its appeal, had opened the second day's argument of the case by presenting a brief upholding his contention that the commonwealth had a right to appeal from the ruling of the County Court that the defendants had not violated the law and the $25 fines imposed by a magistrate be remitted. The lower court had not stated specifically that the Symphony Society members were not guilty, he said, but had held in effect that there was no law covering the playing of music on Sunday and therefore the defendants had violated no law.

He asserted that if the Symphony Society were allowed to conduct Sunday concerts it might mean that places of amusement might also be kept open on Sunday.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Unseasonable Weather Fails to Halt Epidemic of Benefit Affairs Crowding Social Calendar

A PERFECT epidemic of benefit affairs has already begun, and from all appearances will keep on for the next few weeks. The spring months are nearly always chosen for these larger benefits, perhaps with the thought that the balminess of the air will bring out a larger crowd of patrons. Let us hope that the welfare of the beneficiaries doesn't depend upon that this year! It already is spring, according to the calendar, but who would believe it if he relied on the warmth of the weather to prove it?

The Smith College benefit performance of "Caponsacchi," with, of course, Walter Hampden as the star, is scheduled for tonight at the Alvin Theater, and I understand that the ticket sale has been very gratifying to those in charge. Tomorrow afternoon there is the bridge luncheon which the social service committee of the Homeopathic Hospital is giving in the Long Vue Country Club, and a glimpse at its lengthy list of tableholders would tell you that it is going to be a huge success. More than 125 tables have been subscribed for, I hear. As you know, Mrs. James J. Turner, Jr., is general chairman for the affair, with Mrs. Gordon Fisher, Mrs. William S. McKinney, Jr., Mrs. J. Sidney Hammond and Helen Murdock assisting her.

Word from Paris tells us that Edward Duff Baldwin, of Colonial place, who has been in Europe for some time, is in Paris for a visit. He is the guest of his son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Bailey Balken, who have been living in France ever since their marriage last September.

On the list of Pittsburghers who are in New York for a time are the George S. Olivers, of Ellsworth avenue. They are stopping at the Ambassador.

Again one of our local girls is going East to be an attendant at a wedding. Margaret Davidson left today, I understand, for New York, and on Friday will be a bridesmaid at the wedding of Mary Gordon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Gordon, and A. Arthur Waugh, of Winston-Salem, N. C., which will take place in the afternoon in the Madison Avenue Presbyterian Church. Margaret is a daughter of the R. J. Davidsons, of "Oakwold," Cornopolis.

An interesting engagement announced today is that of Dorothy Coates Preston, daughter of Matthew A. Preston, of Bayard place, and Charles Schley, of the Cathedral Mansions. No date has been set for the wedding.

The marriage of Miss Dorothy Thompson, daughter of Edward Thompson, of Wallingford street, and James Russell Dodworth, Jr., son of James Russell Dodworth, of the North Side, will be solemnized Thursday night at 6:30 o'clock in the Thompson home by the Rev. Dr. William H. Farmer. Miss Annabel Thompson will be her sister's maid of honor and the bridesmaids will be Miss Constance Verney, of Fall River, Mass.; Mrs. Henry M. B. Chamberlin, of Mt. Vernon, N. Y.; Mrs. George L. Hoffman and Miss Margaret Farmer, of this city. John McFadden, of Ebensburg, will be best man and the ushers will include Edward R. Thompson, brother of the bride; Paul and Stanley Dodworth, brothers of the bridegroom; Henry and Roland Kenah, of New Orleans. A reception and dinner in the Thompson home will follow the ceremony.

A. G. Gordon, of London, England, arrived this morning from New York to spend three months with his son, W. S. Gordon, of Charlerol. He will also visit his grandson, Dudley Gordon, of Parkview avenue.

Miss Helen Greenwood entertained with a bridge luncheon today in honor of Miss Dorothy Thompson, of Wallingford street, whose marriage to James Russell Dodworth, Jr., will be solemnized Thursday. Six tables were in play. Yesterday, Mrs. Henry M. B. Chamberlin, of Yonkers, N. Y., who will be one of the bridesmaids, entertained for Miss Thompson in the home of her aunt, Mrs. Frank Leslie Maltby, in Pasadena drive, Aspinwall. The guests were Vassar classmates of Miss Thompson.

Mr. and Mrs. Seymour J. Montooth, of Rebecca street, Wilkinsburg, have announced the marriage of their daughter, Miss Helen Mae Montooth, and Harold Niel Thompson, of Swissvale avenue, which was solemnized Saturday at 6:30 o'clock in the Mifflin Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church. The bride wore rose beige lace and carried pink roses and lilies of the valley, while her maid of honor appeared in orchid chiffon and carried butterfly roses. William Jackson was best man. Mr. and Mrs. Thompson are motoring in the East, and after May 1 will be at home in Kelly street, Wilkinsburg.

The Kindergarten Alumnae Association will hold a bridge party Saturday afternoon in Kaufmann's auditorium, the proceeds to be used in assisting kindergarten children in poorer districts. Miss Lena Allison is in charge of tickets; Miss Mary Newell, novelties; Miss Henrietta Lingenfelser, candy; Miss Ada Duff, time and place, and Miss Marie Lingenfelser, prizes.

Miss Anna F. Close, of Wellesley avenue, will be one of a number of Sweetbriar College girls who will take an extensive European trip this summer. They expect to sail June 15 with Miss Jessie Fraser as chaperon. The party will be under the guidance of Dr. Carl Connor, head of the English department.

EX-PITTSBURGH WOMAN TELLS OF CANAL ZONE

It was an exceptionally interesting and informative talk which Mrs. Musa Hunter McKim gave the Keystone Association for Historical Research yesterday afternoon when members and their guests gathered in the home of Mrs. R. D. Beadsley, Briar Cliff road. Since the early days of the war, Mrs. McKim and her family have been residents of the Panama Canal Zone, and it was of life there that the former Pennsylvania woman had to tell in her interesting way.

The zone is the most sanitary spot on earth, she declared, and there is everything to make life enjoyable. "Even when it rains it is pleasant about it," she observed. She told of the numerous horseback and sea trips which may be made, some of them so uncomfortable that not every one can undertake them, but all full to the brim of interest and charm and beauty. Mrs. McKim's description of the various tribes of Indians was of especial note. The customs and costumes of the San Blas tribe (the men of which wear pink silk shirts outside their trousers and top this costume with too-small derby hats), their spotless cleanliness, their high morality, their queer dancing (to reeds blown by the nostrils) were pictured for her hearers, and something was told, too, of the little known Mountain San Blas tribe, into whose fastnesses her husband had penetrated farther than any other white man. The only garment ever brought away from this tribe was displayed, among some other unique articles of clothing and jewelry, by the speaker.

The garments are marvels of handwork, the elaborate designs having been appliqued on, some of them five layers deep. The Americans, Mrs. McKim said, had been fairly driven to tears by the sight of some of these Indians, who, at the behest of missionaries, had left off their own artistic costumes and were wearing unsightly Mother Hubbard aprons.

Music for the afternoon was furnished by Mrs. Marc Darrin and Miss Jean Rodemoyer, pianists. Tea followed the program.

Mrs. Irwin L. Gillespie, district chairman of juniors for the State Federation, is sending out invitations for an all-day conference of juniors to be held Saturday, May 5, in the Twentieth Century Club. Mrs. R. Maurice Snyder, state chairman of juniors, will be present to speak and a club institute, together with a program, will feature the conference.

"Cyrano de Bergerac" will be discussed at the study class of the Congress of Clubs drama department Thursday morning. The study class will meet preceding the departmental luncheon at which Miss Vanda E. Kerst will give dramatic interpretations as the program feature.

Dr. Cora Helen Coolidge, president of Pennsylvania College for Women and a member of the club, will be the speaker at Friday's session of the College Club and will talk on "Marriage and Careers." Tea hostesses appointed are Miss Bessie B. Geddis, Miss Ida E. Allerton, Mrs. Alfred C. Dickey, Mrs. Phillip Angle, Mrs. Charles W. Dahlinger, Miss Alice Thurston McGirr and Mrs. Harry B. Wassell.

Miss A. Marian Cowen, regent of Dolly Madison Chapter, Daughters of 1812, and Mrs. Mark W. McCaffrey, national vice president of the Gallatin Home Committee, left Saturday to attend the national conference of the United States Daughters of 1812, which will be in session at Washington next week. Mrs. W. H. Soisson, of Connellsville, a member of the chapter, will join them, as will Mrs. Alvin M. Sowers, of Morgantown, W. Va., president of the Friendship Hill Association, and state president of the West Virginia Daughters. The State Conference for Pennsylvania will meet in May at the Hotel Schenley, Pittsburgh, with the Dolly Madison Chapter as hostess to the delegate regents and national and state officers.

Isolation in childhood forces a child into expressing itself on paper, Miss Margaret Widdemere in her gentle, pleasant voice told the Twentieth Century Club yesterday morning. When books become a child's companions, he reads what he wants to read instead of following the fashion, she went on, describing her own childhood which had been thus spent, "Not the most amusing life for a child, but very pleasant," she remarked. Miss Widdemere read from her own poems, beginning with some of those imaginative, whimsical things from her "Little Girl and Boyland Poems," and going on to the sympathetic things that were written during the war, when, as she said, "something happened to the thought current of the world." In introducing Miss Widdemere, Mrs. David Wilson Kuhn likened her to "the bouquet" with which pyrotechnic displays are always ended, since Miss Widdemere's talk closed the club's lecture season.

The Children's Hospital was visited and inspected by the Woman's Club of Mt. Lebanon yesterday afternoon and the members heard a talk by Miss Laura R. Wilson, director of nurses. Medical legislation was also discussed for them by Dr. Alexander Colwell, secretary of the Allegheny County Medical Society. At the tea which the music department of the club will hold Friday afternoon in the home of the new music chairman, Mrs. Lillian Gardner, Mrs. Edward O. Tabor will present folk songs from operas, giving them in costume.

A joint meeting was held yesterday by the Protestant Woman's Auxiliary and the Woman's Department, Pittsburgh Council of Churches, in the German Protestant Evangelical Church. Miss Margaret Steel Moss, of the state welfare department, spoke on the advisability of holding an institute to consider a home for girls from Morals Court and Henry Latimer spoke in behalf of the Workshop for the Blind. The auxiliary elected officers as follows: President, Mrs. D. R. Ferguson; vice president, Mrs. J. G. Milholland; secretary, Mrs. J. S. Leland.

A short program featured the annual luncheon of the Monday Club of Carnegie which was an event of yesterday in the Chartiers Country Club. Miss M. H. Strous asked the invocation, there was music by the club quartet; baritone solos were given by Ernest Schultz and readings by Karl Williams. Mrs. W. W. Andrews was accompanist.

FIRE HOUSE LOT BILL OFFERED

An ordinance appeared in Council yesterday authorizing purchase of three lots on Clairtonica street, Twenty-eight ward, on which it is planned to erect an engine house. Louis Huck is the present owner. Norman A. Wirth sent Council a leter complaining that fire insurance rates in the Westwood section of the ward are excessive because of the lack of protection. He said six additional hydrants and three fire alarm boxes should be installed to have the rates reduced.

INFANT SMOKER, 4, YOUNG SANDOW

SEATTLE, April 24.—(AP.)—Freddie Rigg, who at the age of 4 smokes cigars as his contemporaries eat lollipops, is physically developed a year and a half beyond his years. His mental development is one year above the average, Dr. Ira C. Brown, head of the Seattle School Health Department, said yesterday after he examined the boy.

"The boy is decidedly above the average," Dr. Brown said. "The only two things I did find that might be called defects were that his blood pressure is a little higher than it should be and he shows a slight tendency toward anemia."

Mrs. Ralph Rigg, Freddie's mother, explained to Dr. Brown that Freddie at 10 months was puny and unable to take his food until he seized his father's pipe and started smoking. Three months later, he started smoking cigars.

"I feel that medical men can learn a lesson from this boy," Dr. Brown said. "Tobacco increases the flow of saliva, thus aiding the child's digestion. The creosote in the tobacco relieved the fermentation of food for Freddie when he was a baby."

Dr. Brown said it would take three months to cure the child of the tobacco habit through careful regulation of the diet.

New Wax-Finish Furniture Requires Special Wax Polish

The attractiveness of present-day furniture lies in the beauty of its soft, subdued finish. Unfortunately, many housewives rob their furniture of its charm by using the same polish they used on old-fashioned shiny furniture.

The rich beauty of grand pianos and fine furniture is made possible by a wax finish. To preserve this, you should use the same wax polish that is used by the furniture factories themselves.

Old English Liquid Wax is the genuine Old English Wax in liquid form—made especially for easy use on fine furniture and woodwork. Simply dampen a cloth with it, and go lightly over the surface. After a few minutes rub to a polish with a dry, soft cloth.

The result is a dry, wax finish that will not collect lint or dust and can be rubbed up for weeks afterward. In addition, the wax protects the furniture from scratches and fingermarks—because the wear is on the wax, not on the wood.

Get a can today and see for yourself how it will improve the appearance of every piece of furniture in your home—old or new. Use it also for polishing and cleaning floors, linoleums. The pint and quart sizes are ideal for the home.

On sale at all paint, hardware, drug, housefurnishing and department stores.

COAL POLICEMAN DIES OF BULLET WOUNDS

Robert L. Christy, 41, a coal and iron policeman died early today in St. Joseph's Hospital of bullet wounds received early Sunday when he attempted to quiet a disturbance in a bunkhouse at the Coverdale mine of the Pittsburgh Terminal Coal Corporation.

Michael Visenky, 30, a miner, is being held in the county jail, charged with the shooting.

Steve Visenky, a brother, was arrested today charged with being an accessory. Detectives said he had tried to help his brother escape.

The policeman was shot three times with his own revolver, it is said, in a struggle with Visenky. When the officer fell, his assailant fled.

Visenky later was taken into custody by other coal and iron policemen. At the time of his arrest, Visenky was clad only in his underclothing as he had fled from the bunkhouse, police say.

EDWIN F. ALLEN.

Edwin F. Allen, 28, prisoner at El Reno, Okla., has confessed to incredulous police the murders of the Rev. Edward Hall and Mrs. Eleanor Mills, September, 1922. He says he killed them with the aid of his common-law wife for $7,000 paid him by an Elizabeth, N. J., dentist, a relative, he says, of the slain man's widow. He's held for burglary.

GIRL ATTACKED IN PARK

Within the shadow of the Presbyterian Hospital, where she is employed, Mildred Ross, 16, Negro, of 403 South avenue, was attacked by a Negro who tore her clothing shortly before noon today.

The attack occurred in West Park near Montgomery and Sherman avenues. The girl's cries frightened her assailant, who fled. A suspect was taken an hour later hiding under the hospital steps by Patrolman John Stack. At Allegheny Police Station the Negro gave his name as Frank Avery, 19, of 117 Cremo street.

Burial Spot of Tom Keating, Pirates' Victim, Where Trader Spread English Soil

What Has Gone Before.

Alfred Aloysius Horn, in the early Seventies become a trader on the Ivory Coast of Africa, has been admitted to the Josh House of a river tribe that worships Izaga, a white goddess, who is Nina T——. He discovers her father's grave and determines her aristocratic ancestry. She initiates him into the Isorga, whose spirits he finds willing to grant requests for small presents. He goes on with his story, written at the age of 73.

Vampire Bats and Upas Trees

By ALFRED ALOYSIUS HORN

Edited by ETHELREDA LEWIS.

CHAPTER X.

THESE slave traders were the light Cammas; the river Cammas were called the black Cammas, and although the same tribe of natives, the ones born near the ocean were much lighter than the ones born inland. These two tribes of Camma boys were about the best fighters on the coast and were always ready and willing to go anywhere with a trader.

ALFRED A. HORN

I was there with strict orders to find an entrance to this waterway or canal, as the loss incurred every year by landing cargo to the trading posts, which were to be found as far as Gabenda on the mouth of the Congo, was very great on account of the surf which fringed the coast. I had been supplied with an old Admiralty chart and although I found few entrances that could be entered by small sailing craft, these were dangerous and useless as far as steamers drawing seven or eight feet of water were concerned.

I nearly got drowned following the instructions laid down in this chart. I had left my large canoe some distance away from the entrance of this new river mouth, as the small surf canoes built by the Camma people were safer and more easily handled in the surf.

The Whale Rocks

At the entrance of this supposed channel which I called No. 2 south of Cape Lopez, were several roches de baleine or whale rocks. These are formed by caves extending from the river floor to a few feet below oceanwards. The entrances to these caves are large and point to the sea, whilst the outlets are much smaller.

These caves, on being struck by a large wave from the sea, force the water out from the surface inland to a great height and look like the spouting of a whale. There was one very large one right in the middle of the supposed entrance. Here I lost my small canoe, which was hit by a gigantic breaker.

Two of my boys went through the cave mouth, whilst the remaining four of us were thrown out to the left of the whale's head, clean over the barrier reef. As the tide was running inward we all easily swam to shore, landing on the sandy beach of the itove about a quarter of a mile above the roche de baleine.

We were all sound except one boy, who had a small piece of skin of his head hanging down, and as this was covered with coarse black hair would have made a good ink pad. As I had a small medical outfit I soon patched him up. The small canoe went upstream in two halves, but my tin box in which was my compas was recovered by some fishermen, so my loss was small, only leadline used for sounding was gone with the admiralty chart.

The Funny Side

I was glad I lost that admiralty chart, and felt I could do unkind things to the man who made it if I had him on the island just then. The boys who I had left in my big canoe could hardly stop from laughing, dancing and pointing at the wounded one, who they said came through the water and flew up the river like a bird.

We all enjoyed the experience and I surely found the admiralty passage through Mouth No. 2. If any of the agust gentlemen composing the admiralty department doubt my story, let him take the risk of finding the entrance charted, but I would strongly advise him to steer clear of the Whale Rock.

After drying ourselves and eating a hearty morning's meal we all felt as fit as ever. Only we all decided it would be foolish to bother ourselves with any more river entrances.

(Trader Horn at this point informs Mrs. Lewis that "the Americans won't stand for too much tragedy in a story" and makes the following comments:)

"How do you like my version of the Whale Rock episode? A comical interlude is all to the good in literature as in real life. Doesn't do to weigh the thing down with tragedy. The Americans won't stand it. That's why I wove it in after finding T——'s grave. Aye, that old boy of his didn't want to go near. He told Benchore fellers trading would never go near that island if they could help it. But you know what lads are, full of curiosity not to miss anything.

Vampire Bats

"I had to go and see the bats I'd heard so much about. Very unpleasing to the eye—hanging like an old garment that's been drawn through a sooty chimney, full of crumples. About 18 inches long. A foot to 18 inches. Better be strictly accurate and say 18 inches. The Americans resent inaccuracy—especially in weights and measurements.

"If I were to take this story in to an American editor he'd say 'This vampire of yours, was it, or was it not, 18 inches?' Aye, they

'FAG' PRICE CUT TO $6 A 1,000

NEW YORK, April 24.—(AP.)—The wholesale price of cigarets was reduced to $6 a thousand by three leading cigaret manufacturers yesterday. The cut amounts to 45 cents a thousand on the American Tobacco Company's "Lucky Strike" brand and 40 cents each on the "Camel" brand of the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company and the "Chesterfield" brand of Liggett and Myers.

The first effect, other than to arouse in the mind of the man in the street the belief he will be able to buy these brands at the rate of two packs for a quarter, was to cause a precipitate break in the prices of tobacco company issues on the New York Stock Exchange.

There were indications that a cigaret price war has been started, possibly by the Reynolds company, first to announce a price cut. It also is believed that the manufacturers are planning thus to forestall the reported preparations for invasion of the American market by British cigaret manufacturers. A further reason for the cut is believed to lie in the fact that it appears to answer the protests of retail tobacco dealers against sales made to chain stores at prices sufficiently low to enable them to undersell the average tobacco store.

Told of faulty timing, Keech viciously made his trip a second time after once breaking the mark.

BOBO BAXTER—Butler and Cook Wanted

By RUBE GOLDBERG

SIDEWALKS OF PITTSBURGH

By HAVEY J. BOYLE

WHAT used to always interest us in baseball as much as clever fielding and good hitting and good pitching was the clash of tempers and many-sided personalities on the diamond. There was recently an interesting clash in Pittsburgh which throws a light on baseball temper. You must know a little of the background first.

Bush, the local manager, used to play shortstop. McKechnie, a rival manager, was assistant to O'Farrell at St. Louis last year.

Frankhouse, a St. Louis pitcher, was accused by Bush in a recent game here of an unfair delivery. He later had to be relieved. He was angry at Bush and threatened on his bench to take a punch at Bush as he blamed Bush for having been taken out of the game. Frankhouse was adjured by his boss, McKechnie, to calm himself. He switched tactics then, and launched a verbal attack on Bush, the nub of which was that he was glad he wasn't a pitcher on the team Bush played shortstop for. The inference was that Bush might have kicked a few grounders and thus lose his game. Bush came back with something tart. At which McKechnie entered the argument on behalf of Frankhouse. And what almost started a punch or two was a broadside from Bush to the effect that McKechnie had got his present job by undermining O'Farrell, who now catches for him.

PRESUMABLY, there was a word or two in the pleasant little conversation that Webster does not bother to define. Fans in the grandstand saw gesticulating fists, waving arms, and rapidly-moving jaws, but it was only pantomime as the lyrics were not audible.

Interesting, too, is the fact that until that day McKechnie and Bush had been theeing and thouing each other in the most Quakerly fashion.

The fun of these things is missed if you try to say which side was right and which side was wrong. It is sufficient that it is interesting and offers a dimension of baseball, not to be found in the box score.

A WALK along Wylie avenue to Logan street, thence to Fifth avenue.

The region is thickly populated. Children swarm. There are second-hand clothing stores and what appears sometimes to be second-hand fruit stores, too. If the dollar promenades on Fifth avenue and elsewhere downtown, the penny takes Logan street as its place for strolling. A radio squawks to add to the noise caused by an impatient bell of a street car, the fury of a truck driver, and the rattle of wagon wheels. Confusion is heightened by the reckless darting in and out of alleys by a mixed gathering of children. Racial prejudices have not made an ugly dent in the open minds of the kids. The little girls here have abbreviated stockings, but unlike the short stockings of children of better neighborhoods, the abbreviation in Logan street comes from large holes in heels and knees.

IT IS in this section where art is used in a utilitarian way. Thus, on the side of a building which houses a restaurant there is a mural of a man and woman seated at a dinner table. Next door, in a court, is the week's wash, featuring underthings and large bed sheets.

THOSE who idle about the corners accept their poverty as an old acquaintance. Derbies turning green, shoes out at the toe and down at the heel, and coats that seem too small or too large tell their story of an inglorious struggle against insurmountable odds.

IN SPITE of signs of poverty, however, Logan street is anything but a bleak place. Rather it is lively, pulsating, interesting.

OIL MAN ADMITS HE GOT BONDS

WASHINGTON, April 24.—(AP.)—Finally relenting in his determination to defy the Senate Teapot Dome Committee, Robert W. Stewart, chairman of the board of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, testified today that he received a total of $739,500 from H. S. Osler, president of the Continental Trading Company, but that the money was not used by him personally.

Instead, he said, a trust fund was created for the Sinclair Crude Oil Purchasing Company and the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, each to receive one-half of the securities. Last Saturday, however, he told the committee, the directors of his company were consulted and it was decided the fund should be turned over to the Sinclair Purchasing Company, in which the Standard has a large interest.

Stewart was pressed hard by the committee after his initial statements. Senator Walsh offering Treasury witnesses to show that some of the Continental bond coupons were in his account in a Chicago bank. The oil man would not agree that this had been proved.

The witness agreed that the bond transaction between himself and Osler was not of the "usual" kind. On several occasions, he said, Osler had given him securities, which finally totaled the amount he mentioned to the committee. This was done, he declared, despite the fact that he told Osler he did not want to share in the profits of the Continental.

The Continental was formed to buy oil from the Humphreys interests of Denver for $1.50 a barrel. It sold the oil to Sinclair and Stewart companies for $1.75. Stewart, Harry F. Sinclair, H. M. Blackmer and James E. O'Neil were mentioned as guarantors of the Continental's contract. Blackmer and O'Neil are in Europe and have refused to return here to testify in the oil cases.

Stewart is now under indictment for refusing to answer the committee's questions on a former occasion. Senator Walsh (D.) of Montana, said the oil man had purged himself of contempt so far as the Senate was concerned, but that the indictment still stood.

At the end of his testimony, Stewart insisted on replying to the queries which he had turned a deaf ear to on the former occasion. He could not recall ever having discussed the transactions with Sinclair and knew nothing about the bonds except those about which he had testified.

'PUSSYFOOT' IS NOT DISMAYED BY WETNESS

William E. (Pussyfoot) Johnson is satisfied with prohibition enforcement in the United States.

"It took 50 years," he said at the Roosevelt Hotel today, "to enforce the emancipation proclamation and in some places in the South it isn't even enforced yet."

The noted prohibition advocate is in Pittsburgh to speak to the Allegheny County Sunday School Association in North Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church. He will lecture on "As the Orient Sees America," in which he will report his impressions of the Eighteenth Amendment's reaction abroad.

"Pittsburgh, I hear," Mr. Johnson said, "has some pretty wet spots. It's not as bad as Chicago and possibly New York. Buffalo and Detroit are bad, too, but outside of the big cities prohibition is no experiment. In some communities we've had it for 30 or 40 years."

BEAVER YOUTH GIVEN 6 YRS. IN EXTORTION PLOT

BEAVER, Pa., April 24.—George Davis, 17, self-styled "bandit leader and head of 500 men," was sentenced to serve from three to six years in Huntingdon Reformatory. He confessed sending a letter demanding $6,000 to J. B. White, manager of the White Clay Mines Company.

Arc Welding
brings industry new profits

The white heat of the electric arc has become a useful tool in the hands of industry. In the fabrication of metal products it is used for such operations as welding tanks, pipe seams, axle housings, boiler tubes. Tests show that arc welding fuses metal together with a joint that is stronger than the metal itself. It improves the product at the same time that it cuts production costs.

In reclamation as well as in production, the arc welder is saving thousands of dollars annually in industry. Metal parts that have been worn by friction—such as wheel flanges, gears and bearings—can be built up again by electric arc welding. Broken castings, wheels and the like, can be welded together and made as good as new. In almost every case, the cost is only a fraction of the cost of replacing worn or broken parts.

Waterman's Number Seven

The Color Band Inlay on the cap identifies the character of the pen point

.....the pen to try before you buy a fountain pen—

Permanent fountain pen satisfaction requires studied selection. Write-ability is the first test. First choose the pen point which suits you perfectly. Waterman's Number Seven offers a choice of six different styles—fine to broad stub. Next examine the other essential features—a patented spoon-feed which insures even flow of ink, a self-filling device which locks, a clip-cap, and large ink capacity. The holder is hard rubber, the superior material for all quality pens—pleasing to feel, light, stainless and odorless. Satisfied as to utility and personal suitability, then consider beauty. Waterman's No. 7 is a beautiful pen.

$7.00

This is Waterman's new method for determining the pen point you like.

Red—STANDARD—Suits most writers. A splendid correspondence point. Medium flexibility. For home and general use.

Green—RIGID—Tempered to armor-plate hardness. Will not shade even under heavy pressure. Unequaled for manifolding. The salesman's friend.

Purple—STIFF, FINE—Writes without pressure. Makes a thin, clear line and small figures with unerring accuracy. Popular with accountants.

Pink—FLEXIBLE, FINE—As resilient as a watch-spring. Fine, tapered point, ground fine to shade at any angle. Loved by stenographers.

Blue—BLUNT—An improved stub point. This point makes a broad line. May be held in any position. Liked by rapid writers.

Yellow—ROUNDED—A different pen point. The tip is ball shape. Makes a heavy, characteristic line without pressure. Suits left-handed writers.

Use Waterman's ink in Waterman's pens.

A GLORIOUS NEW orange biscuit

ANOTHER Sunshine triumph! . . . And no temperamental prima donna ever received a more rousing welcome.

Just imagine: smooth, heavenly cream . . . wondrously delicious with the tangy flavor of just-ripe oranges . . . Now think of this delicate sweet imprisoned between two little biscuits, so dainty, so light they actually melt in your mouth. Just imagine it! . . . But alas! You can't! Words are so helpless . . . Except these words: "Sunshine Orange Sandwich," spoken boldly to your grocer.

Orange cream filling! Mm-m-m!

MOTHER'S WILL ATTACKED BY CHILDREN

An effort is being made by the children of Mrs. Christina Novy Chapman, who left an estate of $40,000, to break their mother's will.

Mrs. Chapman, before her death, deeded property in Madison avenue and East Ohio street to John J. Chapman, her second husband. Chapman was divorced from his first wife, but his divorce is being questioned on the ground that it was not obtained in the Pennsylvania county in which he lived.

The children ask Judge Thomas F. Trimble of Orphans Court to set aside the deed their mother gave Chapman, a bartender for her.

Attorney Waldo P. Bredin represents the children. They are Mrs. Ludmilla Puharic, of Brighton road; Elmer Novy, Brighton road; Frank Novy, Howard street; Helen Novy Funfar, Goettman street, and Edwin Novy and John J. Chapman, Jr., who live in Ross township.

STAY REFUSED MOERLEIN

The attempt of Medart Trabert, owner of the Moerlein Cafe property at 3810 Fifth avenue, to stay the padlock injunction against that place failed yesterday, when Federal Judge R. M. Gibson refused his petition for a supersedeas.

Trabert sought to have the injunction delayed until the United States Circuit Court could review the case, which was based on the prohibition laws.

CLAIM WHEELING MAN VIOLATED PERMIT LAW

WHEELING, W. Va., April 24.—(AP.)—J. E. Lappam, Wheeling cigar-maker, was arrested, charged with operating a small cigar factory without a Federal permit in violation of Internal Revenue Department regulations. Complaint against Lappam was made by Charles R. Simmons, a son-in-law. Lappam was freed on $1,000 bail pending a hearing Wednesday before a United States commissioner.

Divorce in New Zealand

DIVORCE has to be earned in some places. In New Zealand, for example, separation of a husband and wife by mutual consent for three years is required in order to secure one kind of decree.

Birds That Live in Community

THE penguins of the Antarctic regions are described as the most human of the bird family. They live in communities and have evinced no fear of the men who have gone among them.

JERRY The Epic of a Girl Who Had to Wait. by Elenore M'EHERIN

Rumor Has It That Mary and Saxon Are To Be Married

AS SHE spoke she threw smiles and the flash of brilliant black eyes in Heinie's direction. She made love, saying these commonplace words:

"You sit here. See—how nice, a napkin for the senorita; none for Heinie!"

She ladled the redhot enchiladas to thick and greatly nicked plates. Then she went to a little cupboard and brought out two silver forks worn thin with age.

For the Senor Heinie. No one else uses them—evverr! What is the senorita's name?" she asked naively.

"Dance a fandango and I'll tell you," said Heinie.

The girl gave an impish shrug to her shoulders. "No—I don't dance tonight!"

But she pushed her little table against theirs and seated herself upon it and launched into an amusing and startling tirade against the gamblers who won at her grandfather's games. The inhospitality of them coming here and drinking up old liquor and winning! Such poor breeding!

The enchilada was indeed worthy of her boasting.

"But I'll smell like garlic," said Jerry.

"No," said the girl. "You eat a little parsley. And there'll be no taint. I eat them every day and no one ever objects to my kisses. The senor won't notice it."

They fooled away an hour.

The moment they returned to the large room, the moment Jerry glanced to Mary's place at the table she knew something had happened.

Mary's face was ashen—her mouth a white, angry rush. Suddenly her voice rose—shrill, penetrant. "Black again! Black again! Black again!"

"Looks as though we're just in time," said Heinie.

They reached the table. Mary was sitting there rigid. She had suddenly ceased playing.

The moment she saw Heinie her eyes flared like an animal's. "The game's crooked!"

"No it isn't!"

"It is! Thirteen times in succession the black came up."

"That's all right . . . play on!"

"There, look at it! Black again."

"Finish the game."

"On your responsibility?"

"Of course—finish it!"

Mary shoved $190 to the red . . . and lost. Lost again. Four times.

"Fifteen times in succession. It can't be straight!" Her hand loitered over the $213. With a sudden inspiration, she drew a line through her long column of figures, marked them out.

"Oh, my God! Don't do that!" said Heinie. "Play the game through."

But Mary had already begun a new succession—let the losing game go—starting again. . . .

"You can't do that . . . take it up where you left off." He pushed the $213 to the red. And then—then only perceived it was the end of her stack.

"How is this?" said he, mystified. The wheel stopped at the black.

"How is it!" said Mary, jumping from the table and sweeping her hand across the chips as the croupier drew them in. "How is it! They're crooked! And your system's a joke—that's how! That's how—that's how!"

The people at the table stared. The old don rushed up.

"Let's get out!" said Heinie, greatly embarrassed.

Mary laughed: "All right with me. If it's all right with you!"

She settled in the back of the machine, folding her arms furiously.

"You didn't play it right," said Heinie quietly. "You have to play each game through."

"Risk $213 on the turn of the wheel? Fifteen times in succession! Don't be insane. No one could do that."

"If you'd played the game through—"

Mary interrupted with a high, glittering laugh:

"I played the game through. On your responsibility! On your orders, and your $100. I should worry! Too bad for you."

CHAPTER LX.

IN the unpleasant silence following Mary's announcement, five pairs of eyes turned on her indignantly.

"You've not had so much fun in a long time, Mary," said Rod Porter, trying to ease the situation. "Worth $250 of your money any day."

"Try and get it," sniffed Mary.

"I don't need a system if I want to throw money in the street."

"You didn't play the system," said Heinie good-naturedly and pretending to ignore Mary's threat. "How many times before that last did you quit in the middle of a game and begin over?"

She answered this with an evasive: "How many times with a capital of $500 can you risk $213 on the turn of a wheel?"

"I told you to play a half dollar a point, then the $500 would be sufficient."

"And said nothing when I raised it to a dollar a point."

"Oh, you were getting by, Mary. Only you got cold feet and quit playing your game through when the bets increased. That's why we lost out."

"We lost out when you ordered me to stake $190. I was for quitting then while we were still ahead.

"Jerry, you heard me tell him the game was crooked. You notice that no one was playing the black? So they made the black come up. They cleaned that other idiot out first. He ended with his collar torn to ribbons and $4,000 in the hole. All that time I was winning. But with him out they started to clean me.

"I was hundreds ahead when the black started coming up. Thirteen times was enough for me. I was for stopping. Jerry, you saw that I'd quit!

"I said emphatically that I was through! I'd had enough. We were just about even then.

"And you all heard Heinie order me to play on—finish the game. And you heard me tell him it would be on his responsibility entirely. He shoved that last $213 on the board over my protest. Jerry, you saw it!"

"Well—what about it, Mary?"

"Nothing about it! Nothing of any concern to me!"

"Oh, you started to play the game, Mary. It was 50-50, win or lose, wasn't it?"

"It was 50-50 and you CAN'T lose!"

She sat back in formidable silence.

"Don't say any more," Heinie urged, driving down the now faintly illumined road. Jerry and Hugh sat with him in the front seat. "She's unnerved and excited and she drank too much of that old Bourbon. It creeps up slowly. She'll be all right tomorrow. Let's forget it. The enchiladas were good, eh, Jerry?"

"But hardly worth $500 a pair, Heinie! I'd wring her neck before I'd let her get away with this. I'd sue her."

"I don't believe she means to get out of it. Let's give her a chance."

Late Sunday morning a bluff and casual Mary joined them on the golf course.

She looked very trig in purple sweater and close-fitting hat pulled down to her shadowed eyes.

"Oh, whatta night," she yawned, giving them a superior smile and swinging along at Heinie's side. "And I had the filthy winnings all spent! You better lose that system, Heinie, before it loses your last dime. It's poison."

"She's not going to pay!" snapped Jerry, quickening her pace and ordering Hugh with a toss of her head to keep up with her. "She's going to pass it off calmly like that!"

Hugh, white with unbelief: "We'll insist that she pay!"

"How?"

"Explain that it was clearly understood by all of us—she was to furnish $250. Nothing was said about win or lose. We were all witnesses. I feel personally liable to Heinie. Surely Miss Pennings won't risk our scorn for $250."

Jerry gave him a pitying stare and looked off over the rolling hills to a glimpse of the startling blue Monterey waters.

At 4 o'clock the Pennings' machine drove up to the hotel.

Mary with an arrogant: "Good-by, ole dears!" departed.

"And good-by to your $500, Heinie!" Jerry added.

Heinie refused to speak of the incident.

Upon her return to the city, the affair assumed titanic importance for Jerry.

She was in Sylvia's workroom looking over the half finished portrait of Stephanie.

"The kid got the thrill that comes but once in a lifetime, didn't she? I'm going to change the portrait. She's got a new look in her face—the wonder-look.

"She had a beautiful time, but she had to stick rather close to the grounds. Couldn't take any long drives. Missed the show at the gambling joint."

Sylvia scraped paint from her palette. "Too bad Sacks wasn't there to see his lovely lady in action. Might have opened his eyes. They're going to be married."

"Rumor, Sylvia?"

Frequent Attacks Of Indigestion

May Mean that Ulcers are Beginning to Form

Watch those attacks of indigestion—especially if they are becoming more frequent. Don't let ordinary "stomach trouble" lead to chronic acidity or ulcers.

To treat indigestion safely two things must be done—and at once. The harmful, gas-forming food-fermenting acid must be neutralized and the delicate stomach lining protected. Bi-nesia does both and complete relief from pain comes at once. Bi-nesia is a corrective, not a drug, and is not only perfectly safe to take but gives full protection against serious possibilities. Large 50 cent package of tablets or powder of any druggist today. To treat your indigestion the Bi-nesia way.

TON-MILE COAL RATE PROPOSAL STUDIED HERE

OPERATORS SEE PLAN AS AID TO MINING

A scientific freight rate structure on a ton-mile basis, with the elimination of unnecessary long hauls, suggested as a remedy for the ills of the coal industry by R. Templeton Smith, of Pittsburgh, before the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee in Washington, is receiving wide comment here. The suggestions are praised by a large group of operators and the United Mine Workers of America have renewed their offer to join with the shippers in obtaining equitable rates.

Railroad traffic men withhold comment and another group of operators are noncommittal as to Smith's plan. Some traffic men declare that, although the ton-mile rate would be beneficial for Pittsburgh coal shippers, it probably would be impractical if applied to other commodities and would raise a cry of discrimination in other quarters. Those who favor water shipments point out the entire railroad rate controversy is back where it started more than 10 years ago.

OPERATORS' COMMENTS

Among the comments today were:

D. O. MOORE, traffic manager, Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce—"Mr. Smith's analysis of the situation shows careful study. As he points out, distance has not been given enough consideration in the basing of rates, while attention has been given generally to other factors in the question. In basing Pittsburgh as 100 per cent, the structure gives the distance 240 per cent while the rate is only 115 per cent. There is much merit in what Mr. Smith says and his suggestions are worthy of thorough consideration."

TRACY W. GUTHRIE, president of the Hillman Coal and Coke Company—"Mr. Smith's statement involves various issues in the question and I have not had an opportunity to digest it. It is evident that he has gone into many details of this big subject."

W. P. BUFFINGTON, traffic manager, Pittsburgh Coal Company—"It is a splendid exposition of the entire case and deserves careful consideration."

PHILIP MURRAY, international vice president of the United Mine Workers of America—"The United Mine Workers of America have at all times stood ready to co-opearte with the responsible coal operators of the Pittsburgh district, as well as others having relations with our organization, in the adjustment and proper equalization of not only lake cargo coal rates, but other rates as well."

THOMAS A. DUNN, chairman general traffic committee, Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce—"I cannot say whether I approve it or disapprove it until I have given Mr. Smith's suggestions very careful study."

"Those trees . . . 'Twas said they were some kind of upas tree, supposed to give out unhealthy fumes. If so, they'd poisoned themselves, too. Dead as mutton they were, except for the bats hanging under the boughs. Good sentinels for the dead. But they couldn't guard them from the sea. The sea thinks nothing of upas trees. Nor the dead either. They'll all be gone by now—trees and all.

Tom Keating's Grave

"Washed out into the Atlantic same as poor Tom Keating. One o' the best skippers on the coast was Tom. But the pirates got him and he was buried on the island where George T— was buried. 'Twas quite a proper burying-ground for the fellers that fell to the fever or killed themselves with square-face. Aye, my second visit to the island was when Tom's daughter sent me out some seeds from the garden and a little tin box of English soil. She thought he'd be happier under English soil. No use taking the seeds but I took the soil over. 'Twas too late. The sea'd got Tom Keating.

"So I just sprinkled the soil out over the edge o' the waves and said 'Here's love for you, Tom, from England.' I had to write and tell the girl 'twas all right. No need to say he'd gone. Women set a great deal by grass and wreaths and cetera and so forth. But I reckon Tom was glad when the sea let him loose. He'd been a first-class sailor, first and last."

MEDITATIONS of a MARRIED WOMAN

by HELEN ROWLAND

WHAT EVERY WOMAN KNOWS

TO AN ARTISTIC LOVER.

YOUR "line" is graceful—and discreet;
Tender your kiss and passing sweet.
I like the charming things you say;
I like your strong, protecting way.
I like your gay, caressing smile;
In short, I like your polished style.
And yet—and yet—oh, tell me, now!
Where did you learn it all—and HOW?

One advantage of a radio over a husband is that, while it insists on broadcasting a lot of good advice, you don't HAVE to listen to it.

If seven hundred wives couldn't keep Solomon in the house when he heard that the Queen of Sheba was at the gate, what can ONE wife hope to do in a world full of shebas?

HELEN ROWLAND

This is the season when a wife spends all her time flitting around the shops, while her poor, unsuspecting husband is downtown straining every nerve to get through a hard day's work—in time for the baseball game.

If you listen to the average man's conversation you've got to learn to like autobiography—and, if you don't you may as well learn to like solitaire.

Nothing stirs up all a woman's sporting blood like trying to capture a man who is "through with women!"

If companionate marriage comes in vogue it's going to be almost as tiresome looking around for a new husband, every year or so, as it is hunting around for another apartment every spring.

Working girls, it is said, spend most of their earnings on clothes, beauty parlors and other "husband-bait." In other words, today as always, a woman's idea of "success in business" consists in finding some man who will marry her and take her OUT of it.

* * *

Half the average girl's life is spent in trying to make herself attractive—and the other half in trying to find something worth attracting.

Fay King Tells Woes of "Too Good" Friend

By FAY KING

I WAS a bit surprised when my friend Jill told me that from now on she was going to be as "helpless" and "dumb" as possible.

I hadn't seen her for some time. I always considered Jill one of the brightest, most capable of all my girl friends.

And that, it seems, was just the trouble.

Jill always knew where the best bargains were. Jill could always get a crowd together for anything. Jill was always the moving spirit of all occasions.

"That's just it," she said. "I was the good scout that gulped a soda for lunch and spent the rest of my time shopping for my friends and relatives. If there was going to be a party, it was always up to me to do the planning or send out the notes. A show tavant I'd rush over and get the seats, and all that sort of things!"

Poor Jill was so busy patching up her friends' quarrels! Listening to their troubles. Matching silk for them. Suggesting alterations in their clothes. Fixing up little hats for them. She, herself, got run down at the heels. She had broken so many dates with her own best beau to sit and sympathize with her friends—she almost lost him. Jill just had to quit being a good scout for everybody but herself!

"And the worst of it is," she said, "it had got to the place where, instead of appreciating the favor I was doing for them, they actually thought they were doing me a favor to let me do these things for them!"

HOW TO KEEP WELL

Common Sense Methods of Checking Baldness

HAIR isn't like disease. On the contrary, it is something everybody wants. If it begins to fall out, if it is filled with dandruff, or if it is too dry or too greasy, then there is a wail about the hair and from every quarter come questions about treatment.

DR. COPELAND

Like every other kind of tissue the health of the hair depends on its blood supply. Without blood and ample blood, the hair must suffer. Unless the roots of the hair are constantly bathed in this life-giving fluid, there is sure to be failure of normal growth and vigor.

All the blood vessels which supply the scalp come from below. At the edges of the hair the vessels are of good size and the blood supply abundant. As the vessels approach the crown and top of the head, they taper off in size and are less capable of carrying a lot of blood. How much blood gets to the tiny vessels at the crown depends on the power of the heart.

If the heart is a powerfully acting pump, it drives the blood in a forceful stream to the tiny vessels at the very ends of the blood vessel system. If it is a weak and soft acting heart it does not do so well. If the health is impaired and, in consequence, the heart's action lowered, there is too little blood to supply the hair roots.

Men do much to interfere with the blood supply which might be ample otherwise. They wear heavy, close-fitting hats and wear them much of the time. The popular idea is that the heat of the hat causes baldness. It isn't the heat that causes the hair to fall. It is the pressure from the weight of the hat, or from the tight band which interferes with the circulation of the blood and which may actually cut off from the scalp a lot of the blood which is necessary to the nourishment and very life of the hair. A light and loose-fitting hat obviates this trouble.

There can be r doubt that the foodstuffs containing the chemical elements for hair building must be supplied liberally or the hair will suffer. Sulphur, particularly, is a chief constituent of hair. Diet has its place, therefore, and foods containing sulphur are most important. Among such foods are whole wheat, eggs, milk, oatmeal, dried beans and peas, gluten, bran and lean beef.

To save the hair the health must be built up and the heart's action improved. Exercise, fresh air, sunlight, good food—all these are important.

Trouble with the hair is an evidence, usually, of some failure of function of the body or of the ductless glands. Normal health, then, is essential to the growth and preservation of the hair.

Answers to Health Queries

J. G. H. Q.—What causes my fingernails to be so very soft and thin?

A.—This is probably due to the lack of calcium salts in your foods. Try to eat more vegetables.

T. R. Q.—Is it injurious to take salts every day without having had it prescribed?

A.—Yes. Salts are apt to prove weakening if taken in excess.

TOMORROW'S HOROSCOPE

Wednesday, April 25

The stars above us govern our conditions.—SHAKESPEARE.

ALTHOUGH this is presaged to be a very active and lively day, according to the strong martian incitements, yet it may not be considered as under auspicious government, either as to finances or in purely personal relations. There may be promising contacts with new ventures, especially of an unusual nature, or in diplomatic, government or super-physical projects, such as aeronautics, radio or even occult investigation. But shun speculation and overweaning pleasures.

Those whose birthday it is may expect a particularly lively and enterprising year, although there are signs of hazard in financial returns and dangers through neglect of important matters for pleasurable indulgence, which may not bring happiness after all. Deal with large corporations, experimenters and the government, but shun speculative enterprises.

A child born on this day will be resourceful and aggressive, but will profit by having self-control and cool methods inculcated. It should succeed with the government or in unusual fields.

Notable Nativity: Oliver Cromwell, lord protector of England.

FOR THE LOVELORN

Correspondents are reminded that all letters sent to this department must be written on one side of the paper only, and that no personal replies are ever given.

Lou

DEAR MISS GALE:

Am writing to you for advice. I am 19 years old and I am in love with two fellows. Joe and Pete. Joe is 24 and very settled. He is jealous and doesn't like to hear me talk of other fellows. He intends to marry me this June a year, although it is a year that I've met him. Joe is a hard worker. Pete is 20 and seems to care a great deal for me. We've talked of marriage and he says that if we marry he'll be the happiest man. He wants to marry next Thanksgiving. I know him two years. Pete doesn't work at all, only odd jobs. I am deeply in love with both and it's kind of hard to decide which one I should marry. LOU.

You are not in love with either, my dear, or you wouldn't need to ask a third person about the matter. However, the first young man seems to be the more desirable as a husband.

Poor Little Rich Girl

DEAR MISS GALE:

What would you do if you were 21, pretty and well to do, but noninterested in society balls and other things the rich do. I didn't like them so I got a job as a stenographer. But, oh the racket at home. I am old enough to judge my own mind, but dad and mother say I wasn't made to work. They say I'm like my aunt. I don't have to work but I'm not satisfied to sit around and have servants wait on me. What shall I do? Give up my work in an office where I am joyfully happy or leave it all and go back to lazy living of the idle rich? Please tell me as I shall do just as you say. Thanking you for the same, I am,

POOR LITTLE RICH GIRL.

It seems to me that if you are happier at work, then that is the place for you to be. Your parents should be glad you have so much ambition.

Gray Eyes

DEAR MISS GALE:

Have been reading your wonderful advice for a long time, and now come for some myself. Now, this is my problem, Miss Gale. I just got out of the hospital after having an operation, and during the whole time I was there a certain girl whom I was very much in love with never even came to see me or called up to find out my condition. Now, Miss Gale, as I said, I loved her dearly, but do you think it's my place to call her up, or don't you think she cares any more, and was just using me for a pastime? "GRAY EYES."

She certainly isn't very much interested, Gray Eyes. If I were you, I should try to forget about her.

Boots

DEAR MISS GALE:

You certainly give excellent advice to young people and I hope you will lend me some, too. Miss Gale, I quite agree with you in smoking, drinking and petting and I am proud to say I don't do any. My problem is not so much a love problem but just a bit of advice. As my family is well-to-do my mother and father go away for a month at a time. My aunt and uncle stay with me. My aunt says that she will let me go out with a young man if she knows him, which I think is right. I am 15 but I rarely think of boys as I am so embedded in my school work. I am a sophomore in a private school. Once in a while I get a "boy crazy" streak but it usually passes on. Now we always eat at a boarding house for dinner and two college students wait on the tables. They are for their board in doing this. We have eaten there for two weeks and this young student seems interested in me, so my aunt introduced us a week ago. Do you think it would be all right if I asked this young man to call on me? He is very fine looking and my aunt likes him, too. I myself do not want to get the habit of running out much, as it would interfere with my school work. Mother and daddy say I may go out when I am next fall but not all the time, as I will be 15½ years old then. Miss Gale, I would like to say a few words to your other readers and writers who "pet," especially girls. Girls, when you have let a boy pet you and get familiar, don't you feel ashamed and want to hide yourselves from the world for a while? And also in saying vulgar things and expressions? I should think a girl would want to make a good, clean impression on a boy the first time she goes out with him, don't you, Miss Gale? I used to go with a crowd that said vulgar things and got familiar and although I have moved from that town I regret very much having lowered myself to such actions. A good motto for a clean girls is "Be thou familiar but by no means vulgar." BOOTS.

You are too young to have boys call on you, my dear. Wait, as your parents suggest, until you are a little older.

Scandalizer

DEAR MISS GALE:

I am a young man 22 years of age. I am in love with a certain young lady, but there seems to be someone else in her life that she cares for more than me. I visit her at least once a week and often times we come in contact with each other at her chumsins' gatherings. She says she cares for me in an altogether different way from that of the other boy friend. Lately he was injured and this has given me more chance to see her. I do love her, and without her I am lonely and blue. Won't you please tell me, Miss Gale, should I keep on showing her attention? Is it the right thing to do? I agree with you on your ideas of young people. I do not drink and can't get with everybody, in fact I am a little backward.

SCANDALIZER.

Of course it is the right thing to do, Scandalizer. You will never win he if you stop paying attentions to her now.

Phil Veritzen's Interest in Miss Lincoln Makes a Stir

MARY HARRISON is brave as well as possessed of distinct histrionic talent. I knew that she was experiencing bitter humiliation at the sight of Eleanor Lincoln in the Veritzen limousine, with both the owner and his son apparently so engrossed in her conversation as to forget that they were passing the farmhouse. But beyond her quick intake of breath, and the frightened look in her eyes, both promptly conquered, she gave no betrayal of the emotion which I knew was hers.

"Mr. Veritzen's a quick worker, isn't he?" she asked, with a gay, little laugh, not addressing anyone in particular, and with her eyes looking at the curve in the road around which the car had disappeared. "I wonder whether he's fallen for the Lincoln dame's charms himself, or thinks she'd be an ornament to the family riding tandem with Noel."

Dicky looked at her sharply, and I saw his eyes narrow, sure sign that something has displeased him. Then, as his glance left Mary's face and came to rest on mine, his face mirrored an expression as near embarrassment as I ever had seen it wear, for Dicky's poise is proof against almost anything—in public. His behavior when alone with me is another matter. Then the most trivial thing displeasing him often leads to one of his tantrums.

I guessed that he had seen me watching him and had realized that I had read his quick alarmed displeasure at Mary's suggestion that Philip Veritzen was himself romantically interested in Eleanor Lincoln.

But there was something besides embarrassment in his glance. There was also a query as forceful as if it had been uttered aloud. What was my reaction to this pointed attention paid to the beautiful young mistress of The Larches by my employer?

It was a query which was being answered in my own mind in a manner which caused me much concern. For, shamefacedly, I realized that the sight of Eleanor Lincoln seated in Philip Veritzen's limousine with the great producer paying marked attention to her had caused me not only uneasiness but distinct resentment. I recognized, of course, and with self-loathing, the reason for my chagrin.

It was exactly the feeling of a spoiled child seeing its toys in the hands of another youngster, or of a young girl watching her usual dance partner neglecting her for another girl. Yet something within me bore witness to the truth that my unmistakable rancor against my employer was a summer zephyr compared to the storm of rage which had shaken me when I witnessed Dicky's absorbed interest in Miss Lincoln.

When Lincoln loyally replied to Mary's query, I realized that both Dicky and I had been too much engaged with our own emotions to answer the girl.

"I don't think either hypothesis of yours is correct, Mary," she said smiling. "Phil is simply exerting his mongoose motto to 'run and find out' about anything new which crosses his horizon. He is down here with nothing much going on. Eleanor Lincoln is not only a novelty, but there is the charm of mystery about her. He probably will pay around with her as much as she will let him until he either solves the mystery surrounding her or gets tired of trying."

But to me, later in the day, she voiced a different interpretation of my employer's actions.

"I can't figure out exactly what Phil's up to," she said, "but whatever it is, it doesn't spell any good times for Mary."

Scarf Designs

An effort is made to accomplish the delicate beaded designs that are draped in soft flows of metal thread, with which stitching, upon recently introduced chiffon scarfs. Evening scarfs must be diaphanous, and are made of the sheerest posh chiffon, hand embroidered, or of printed or brocaded velvet. Metallic embroidery and hand painting are quite the fad.

It Lifts Your Spirit

By Edna Wallace Hopper

The vigor of a March wind carries you along with a light heart. Spring is approaching and the world seems gay and hopeful.

Edna Wallace Hopper as she looks today

It's great for your spirit but hard on your skin. Every gust of wind ruthlessly plants tiny particles of dust in your pores, takes the naturally smooth texture. Your most precious skin is constantly exposed to these harsh effects.

But you can erase the inroads upon beauty with a little care and the right help, which I spent years to find.

I call this help my Facial Youth. It is a liquid cleanser which soothes the skin and actually removes the dust and grime which are so destructive. Soap and water merely cleanse the surface, and have a coarsening effect.

Facial Youth does not grow hair. It has a clean, fresh odor. It's a pleasure to use this gently soothing cleanser. I know of nothing which does more to retain youthful firm smoothness of face.

May I urge you, for beauty's sake, to buy a bottle at any toilet counter? The price is 75 cents. Your money back if you are not satisfied.

I Lost That Fat
So Easily—So Quickly

Many people all about you now rejoice in slender figures. Wherever you look you can see that excess fat has largely disappeared.

Some have lost fat painfully—by starvation or abnormal exercise. But they found these methods slow and hard and often dangerous. A great many others have gained the results in an easy pleasant way, modern and scientific.

This modern method is embodied in Marmola prescription tablets, now used for 20 years. They combat a cause of excess fat discovered by modern research. That cause is not overeating or too little exercise, but lack of a certain substance in the system.

For two decades Marmola has helped to bring new beauty new health and vitality to those who were over-fat.

Those people have told the results to others so the use has spread. Now in every circle you can see the results of this easy, pleasant method.

The use of Marmola requires no abnormal exercise, or diet but moderation helps. Simply take four tablets daily until the weight comes down to normal. Every box contains the formula, also an explanation of results to banish any fear of harm.

Go try Marmola—you owe that to yourself. Learn what so many know about it. Watch its results for a month, and you will be glad in many ways that you found it out. Order a box now before you forget it.

Marmola prescription tablets are sold by all druggists at $1 per box. Any druggist who is out will get them from his jobber for you.

SPORT COMMENT
by JAMES J. LONG

Kremer's Arrival at Pitching Form Means Much to Pirates—Recovery of Wright's Batting Eye Another Helpful Factor—Cubs Figure in Four Shutouts in Last Five Games.

FOR the second time the Pirates have broken a losing streak after dropping three games in succession, and it is to be hoped that on this occasion their escape from the rut will be permanent and that there will be no falling back into losing form for more than a day or two.

There was an excuse for the Bucs during their earlier games, as they clearly were not right and needed work, in addition to their pitching staff's being crippled. But they have had about enough time in which to attain the fitness which they were prevented from reaching by unfavorable weather on the coast.

Ray Kremer.

The fact that the Cubs scored only three runs in the last two games indicated that the pitching is O. K., the offense ought to improve correspondingly, and with a general brace all around in prospect victories ought to be of more frequent occurrence from now on.

THE form shown by Remy Kremer yesterday was as pleasing as the Pirate victory itself. What the Frenchman means to the Bushmen cannot be too highly estimated, and Monday's evidence that Kremer is Kremer again, after that poor start of opening day, promises much for the season as a whole.

Kremer, when right, is the best pitcher in the National League, and it would have been a hard blow to the Pirates if they had lost his services for any great length of time as was the case last year.

ANOTHER encouraging feature of Pittsburgh's third win of the year was the manner in which Glenn Wright came out of his batting slump. In five straight games prior to yesterday's, Wright made only four hits in 22 times at bat for an average of only .182 and struck out more than his average number of times, including one whiff Friday when the bases were full. All of which suggested any-... hitter entitled to hold the important clean-up job in third place. But it was different yesterday. It was the shortstop who put his mates in the lead by cracking a home run into the center field stand in the first inning with two out and one runner on the paths, and his safe bunt so upset Pitcher Malone in the third inning that he threw to third base, letting two more tallies go over. It makes a lot of difference when the clean-up man is hitting.

Glenn Wright.

THAT was the fourth shut-out game in which the Cubs had figured out of five successive contests. They played three straight whitewash games with the Reds, winning two and losing one, and after Sunday's game with the Bucs they ran into another yesterday, when Kremer gave them three hits and nine horsecollars.

The Bruins have participated in five shutout games up to date, a most unusual record for any club in the first 13 days of the season. And at that the Cubs are not alone in that distinction, as the Reds also have played in five games in which one side or other did not score.

THE return of Tony Lazzeri to the Yankee lineup after an absence dating back to the exhibition games on the spring trip, led Bill Hanna to observe that while Lazzeri was out the Yanks were a more polyglot combination than ever. For Durocher is a Frenchman and was understudying for an Italian. The team suggests a league of nations. The Germans, who predominate, are Ruth, Meusel and Gehrig. Dugan, surprising as it may seem from his name, is Irish, Koenig is a Swiss, Grabowski a Pole, Pipgras a Dane and Gazella is of Russian extraction.

Tony Lazzeri.

NOW that President John A. Heydler of the National League has returned to New York after trying to be present at as many opening games as possible (and incidentally he set a new record by attending no fewer than four openers, those in New York, Chicago, Pittsburgh and Boston) he is expected to issue some sort of notice to the managers, players and umpires on a subject that is very rarely brought up.

That is, the size and dimensions of players' fielding gloves. During a game in Brooklyn last week, complaint was made that Pitcher Charley Robertson of Boston was wearing a glove that exceeded the legal limits, with the result that the glove was taken from Robertson and locked up in the safe at the league office, pending Heydler's return.

SEEMINGLY the manufacturers slip occasionally or players forget that not all can wear gloves of any size they desire. The rule is: "The catcher or first baseman may wear a glove or mitt of any size, shape or weight. Every other player is restricted to the use of a glove or mitt weighing not over 10 ounces and measuring not over 11 inches around the palm.

SINCE Jack Katkish made such a sorry showing against Jack Zivic in his bout at Motor Square Garden last week all sorts of reflections have been cast upon his fighting qualities

The problem is!

Why does the bimbo who wins the singles in any given tournament always drag down the heavy end of the swag while the sap who is only good enough to win the all-events championship just about gets back his entry fee?

FOR instance, in the American Duckpin Congress tournament, just completed, the winner of the singles won himself $35, and the winner of the all-events got only $25, and in the recent Market Square tournament the singles win-

FANS SUPPORT BUCS' CLAIM IN PROTEST

By JAMES J. LONG.

NEW testimony from an outside source in support of the Pittsburgh baseball club's protest of the Cubs' 3-to-2 victory in Chicago Sunday was brought forward today.

In addition to Manager Owen Bush's formal written protest, to be forwarded to League President John A. Heydler, President Barney Dreyfuss received a letter from a resident of Gary, Ind., who, with his 11-year-old son, was among the spectators in left field when Stephenson's questionable triple was hit in that direction in the eighth inning.

The ground rules for the day called for only two bases on a hit into the crowd on the field. Manager Bush asserts that when Stephenson drove a ball over third and into the outfield it was clear that the ball went into the crowd. He says that Umpire Klem at third base signaled Stephenson to stop at second base and that Umpire Magee held up two fingers. Then Manager McCarty, of the Cubs, according to Bush, called the attention of the umpires to the fact that the ball was lying on the playing field, clear of the crowd. Klem then allowed Stephenson three bases, and when Bush appealed to Umpire McCormick, behind the plate, the latter said he had not observed that the ball was in open territory, as he was getting ready to put a new ball into play. Bush claims that the fact McCormick was preparing to CHICAGO, April 24.—Enthused as a result of the form shown by Remy Kremer and John Miljus in the past two days, the Pirates showed a much snappier front today as they moved about preparatory to the third game of the series with the Cubs.

LATZO TOO SLOW

NEW YORK, April 24.—(INS.)—Although Pete Latzo, former welterweight champion, made a successful debut in the light-heavyweight division by outpointing Tony Marullo, of New Orleans, in a 10-round bout here last night, he appeared too slow to have a chance against Champion Tommy Loughran. The former Scranton (Pa.) miner had Marullo Groggy, but could not put him away.

Frenchy sent the Ducco thermometer from zero up to moderate heat yesterday when he twirled a three-hit classic against the Bruins, the Pirates finishing on the victory end of a 6 to 0 game.

Kremer had not done a tap since opening day almost two weeks ago and the rest, together with the limbering up sprouts appear to have toned him just right for the shutout exploit over the Cubs. In wielding the whitewash brush, Remy led the way to the first success the Pirates have achieved over the Cubs this spring. Five running defeats were sustained in the exhibition season, but fortunately these had nothing other than psychological effect.

GRIMES MAY HURL

Manager Bush was not sure this morning as regards to his pitching selection. It will be either Burleigh Grimes or Joe Dawson, said Donie as he reviewed his staff. Joe McCarthy is expected to counter with Sheriff Fred Blake of West Virginia, or Charlie Root, the leading victory man of the senior circuit last season.

Joe Harris is still ailing, but the veteran firstsacker has been given good care and he will be able to

Much of the credit for the success of the Indians is due George Uhle, former Cleveland sandlot star, who is pitching fine ball after a mediocre season last year. Uhle has scored three victories in as many starts to date, defeating the Browns, White Sox and Tigers.

CHICAGO, April 24.—Wright's batting string for the day went from power to science in two times at the plate. Glenn followed up his homer by dropping a safe bunt on the grass. His four-sacker was one of the hardest drives of the season by any Pirate. It caused a riot in the faraway centerfield bleachers, and when the ball cracked against the bat, the sharp report told everybody that the rocket was ticketed for a one-way journey.

KI CUYLER went hitless again. The best Ki could get was a base on balls. Sparky Adams made a clean single driving in a run and was hit with a pitched ball.

PAT MALONE received a big ovation from his home fans when he fanned Kremer, L. Waner and Adams in succession in the Seventh. Pat thought he had the fourth man in a row when he almost sneaked over a third strike on P. Waner who opened the eighth.

THE present arrangement of the Chicago lineup, with its preponderance of righthand batters, may be a setup for pitchers of the Kremer-Miljus type. Lefty Grimm is the only southpaw swinger in the regular outfit.

IT required a left hander—Percy Jones—to stop the batting rush of Boots Grantham, and Malone also held Grantham hitless.

THAT the fans in the western division of the National League are being treated to some splendid pennant exhibitions is easily shown by the number of shutouts turned in by the hurlers of the Reds, Pirates, Cubs and Cardinals.

While the western clubs have registered seven whitewashings to date, the eastern part of the Heydler circuit has been dormant insofar as shutout victories are concerned.

The Chicago Cubs and Cincinnati Reds each have participated in five shutout games so far this season, the Bruins holding a slight edge with three victories and two defeats. The seven shutouts scored in the National League so far follow in the order in which they were played:

Date.	Winner.	Loser.	Score	Pitcher
April 12.	St. Louis	Pgh.	5-0	Alexander
April 15.	Chicago	Cin.	2-0	Nehf
April 16.	Cincinnati	Pgh.	5-0	Lucas
April 19.	Chicago	Cin.	13-0	Blake
April 20.	Cincinnati	Chi.	6-0	Blake
April 21.	Chicago	Cin.	6-0	Root
April 23.	Pittsburgh	Chi.	6-0	Kremer

Owen Carroll, former Holy Cross College pitcher, has allowed only one run in winning his last two games. On April 18 he defeated the Browns, 4 to 1, allowing only six hits, while yesterday he blanked the White Sox, 3 to 0, holding them to five safeties.

FOUR shutouts have been scored in the American League race to date, Detroit setting the pace with two victories without suffering a whitewashing.

Earl Whitehill blanked the Browns on April 20, 3 to 0, while Owen Carroll held the White Sox runless in winning yesterday, 3 to 0. The American League shutouts to date, in the order in which they were recorded, follow:

Date.	Winner.	Loser.	Score	Pitcher
April 18.	Chicago	St. L.	7-0	Thomas
April 20.	Detroit	St. L.	3-0	Whitehill
April 21.	Philadel.	N. Y.	10-0	Walberg
April 23.	Detroit	Chi.	3-0	Carroll

The Browns yesterday put a stop to Joe Shaute's winning streak after the Cleveland left-hander had registered two victories over the Chicago White Sox. Although he went the distance, Shaute lost the decision to Sammy Gray, 4 to 2. In winning his two full games from the White Sox, Shaute allowed the opposition only two runs, winning, 2 to 1 and 7 to 1.

Cadets Will Invade West

NEW YORK, April 24.—(AP.)—Seeking to fill the hole left in its schedule by the breaking off of athletic relations with the Naval Academy, the Army has signed a home and home contract with the University of Illinois for football games in 1929 and 1930.

Under the agreement, formally approved by the Secretary of War, the Army will travel to Urbana to meet the Illini in November of next year. Illinois will come East for the return game against the cadets either at New York or West Point, in the same month of 1930. The exact dates have not yet been fixed.

Football observers saw in the agreement additional confirmation of the belief that there was little chance of the Navy and Army adjusting their differences over eligibility rules for some years to come at least.

TO MEET NEBRASKA

The cadets' schedule for this year calls for a game either at New York or West Point against Nebraska on November 24, the date on which the traditional struggle with the Navy would have been staged. Notre Dame is met at New York on November 10 this year, but will take over the last spot on Army's schedule the following year. Observers expect that Nebraska, with which the cadets have only a one-year contract, would be dropped after 1929 and the Illini substituted in the vacant place—probably on November 9, 1929, and a corresponding date in 1930.

The cadets' trip West to meet the Illini in 1929 will mark the first time the soldiers have played an intersectional opponent in the West. It will also be the first time the Army has clashed with a "Big Ten" team since Chicago was defeated at West Point in 1903.

SPEAKING of SPORTS by HARRY KECK SUN-TELEGRAPH SPORTS EDITOR

ner bagged $75 and the all-events winner a measly $15.

The A. D. C. tourney officials made a radical change in their prize distribution plan, breaking up the dough in four classes, but they didn't go far enough, and next year we'd like to see 'em give credit where credit is due and reward the all-events winner as he should be rewarded.

A total of $95 was distributed among the singles leaders in Classes A, B, C and D of the Congress tourney, and the all-events total for first place in the four classes was only $72.50.

Any lucky stiff is liable to be good for three games in the singles, but the guy who can knock the pins for a flock of loops through nine games in the singles, doubles and five-men event is the bowler for us, and he ought to get most of the marbles when the boodle is split up.

We may be wrong, but we doubt it. If we are, blame it on Hilary Wertz on general principles. He's still sleeping off the effects of the A. D. C. excitement and a few more shocks won't bother him.

JIMMY BRONSON, manager of the Zivic brothers, Sandy Seifert and others, has a new young star under his wing for whom he predicts a bright future. The newcomer is Add Warren, former North Carolina football star, who has had nine fights as a pro and won seven of them by knockouts and is being touted for a fight with Young Stribling for the below the Mason-Dixon line championship.

Add won the National amateur heavyweight championship twice and lost only two fights as a simon-pure, to Armand Emanuel, now Jack Dempsey's protege, and to Joe Monte, stablemate of Jack Sharkey. He attended West Point for a while and was schooled in wrestling there by old Tom Jenkins and won his letter in football, boxing and wrestling at North Carolina. He was all-Southern tackle in 1926 and 1927, is 23 years old, weighs 185 pounds and stands 5 feet 11½ inches in his tribbies. He is a distant relative of William Howard Taft, former President of the United States. Some guy!

PIRATES

leave with his mates for Pittsburgh tomorrow night, it is believed. Joe caught a heavy cold in the cool weather that attended Sunday's game.

Altoona Pat Malone fanned seven of the Pirates as he fought it out with Kremer, but the American Association star did not have the same mastery over the Bucs that Frenchy showed against the Bears. Malone has a whistling speed ball and excellent control, but the Buccos were in a distinctive batting mood.

Glenn Wright, the Waner boys and one or two others were able to get their bats against the "swifter" quite often, Wright coming through with a smashing homer into the centerfield bleachers in the first inning that scored two tallies.

The two runs scored by Wright at the outset were followed by a couple more in the third, Malone helping out here with a wild throw, Gooch's double, Sprout Waner's three-bagger and Adams' single off Art Nehf in the ninth frame gave the invaders another brace of tallies. Brother Paul connected with three clean hits as he found his batting eye.

Lefty Grimm, Riggs Stephenson and English were the only Cubs to solve Kremer as Ray reeled off the first shutout success the Pirates have obtained this season. Kremer was his old self all the way and he was accorded good support except in one or two instances.

Several balls left Cubs bats with firecracker effect but one of Ray's supporting cast was generally in the path of the rocket.

throw a new ball to the pitcher supports Pittsburgh's contention that the ball hit by Stephenson went into the crowd.

FAN SUPPORTS CLAIM

In the same mail with Bush's protest, came a letter from a man who resides in Gary, Ind., and who, with his 11-year-old son, was among the spectators in left field when Stephenson made his hit. This man writes that the ball hit by Stephenson unquestionably went into the crowd, and that his young son, who was standing at his side, kicked it back onto the playing field. Under such conditions, Stephenson would have been entitled only to a two-base hit, and would have been unable to score the winning run, as he did a few moments later on Butler's sacrifice fly to Paul Waner. The Gary resident says he is offering his testimony out of a spirit of fairness, feeling that the decision which cost Pittsburgh the game was unjust.

President Dreyfuss forwarded the formal protest, as well as the letter of the Gary man, who gave his name and address, to League President Heydler for a decision.

ASK NEW RULING

"The Pittsburgh club is not asking that the game be thrown out," said the Pirate magnate. "We merely contend that Stephenson should have been given only two bases instead of three on his hit, and that if he had been on second, where he belonged, he could not have scored the winning run on a sacrifice fly.

"We ask only that the game be played out again from the point at which Stephenson made his hit. That is, resume play at the beginning of the second half of the seventh inning with Stephenson on second and none out, and play out the contest from that stage, both sides to use the same pitchers and lineups as nearly as possible."

AMATEURS

first-round bouts and five were beaten, two being knocked out. Those who turned in victories were Buck McTiernan, who defeated Johnny Ward in a 147-pound class bout; Andy Andrucci, 135-pounder, who knocked out Clyde Taylor of Belleville, Ill., in the second round and Dan Billick, who won over Harry Smith of Grand Rapids in three rounds.

HAGGERTY KAYOED

John Haggerty was stopped with a punch in the first round by Ensign W. G. Allen of the Naval Academy in a second-round bout. Curtis Poet of the University of Nebraska stopped Russell Verge in the third round. Gene Blanco of Boston whipped A. Iovino in three rounds. Curtis Brown won over Andy DeLuca in three rounds in the 147-pound class and in the 160-pound division, Max Ziff was beaten by A. Stillman of St. Louis.

Tommy Lown, New York, the national 147-pound champion, in his first-round bout knocked out Frank P. Miller of Buffalo in the first round, with a left hook to the jaw. Ensign Harry Henderson of the Naval Academy, appeared the best of the 160-pound talent. He drew a tough customer in John Begley of San Francisco, but found him often with terrific left jabs and floored him in the second. Ed Herbst, New York, appeared as a dangerous threat for Henderson when he outpointed Harold Kashare of Los Angeles in impressive style.

Dave Maier, Milwaukee 175 pounder, knocked out Willie Huffman, Grand Rapids, in the first round, shortly after the bell rang to start the bouts in that class.

The 147-pound boys gave the spectators plenty of action. William Bennett of New Orleans and Russell Powers of Youngstown, O., engaged in a slugging match and the Southerner drew the decision.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 24.—(AP.)—Jack Reynolds, world's welterweight wrestling champion, defeated Joe Parelli, of New York, in a fast match here last night. Reynolds lost the first fall in 20 minutes, gained the second in 52, and won the match 20 minutes later.

MIKE, ARMAND FIGHT DRAW

SAN FRANCISCO, April 24.—(AP.)—Mike McTigue, veteran New York light-heavyweight, and Armand Emanuel, San Francisco, protege of Jack Dempsey, fought a 10-round draw here last night. Referee Toby Irwin's decision came as a surprise as the ringside critics thought Emanuel had a shade in seven or eight rounds with the second and tenth fairly even.

Emanuel showered left hands to the former light-heavyweight champion's face steadily in every round.

MARTIN TO QUIT VETERANS' HOSPITAL

WASHINGTON, April 24.—(INS.)—Bob Martin, heavyweight champion of the A. E. F., will leave Mt. Alto Veterans' Hospital in a few days, a casualty of the ring and of the world war.

The severe pummelings which Martin received in winning the heavyweight championship in France and in his professional bouts after the war have permanently disabled him, according to army doctors. In the ring they call it "punch drunk." The official explanation is that severe head punching had caused cerebral lesions.

Martin will return to his home in Terra Alta, W. Va.

Pittsburgh Aged Man Uses Ten Herbs With Remarkable Results.

"I am a man of 70 years, and when a medicine can benefit a man of my age like Ten Herbs did, it must have merit," was the statement of Mr. Charles Dowling, 208 Ellis Street, East End, Pittsburgh, to the Ten Herbs Man, who is at May's Main Store, 529 Liberty Avenue, Pittsburgh, where he is daily demonstrating this great natural medicine to crowds of people. "I want to tell you my experience, after taking three bottles of Ten Herbs," continued Mr. Dowling, who is employed at the Duquesne Laundry.

MR. CHARLES DOWLING

"For years my stomach caused me to feel miserable. I lost my appetite, and what little I ate would cause gas, bloating and pains. These pains were continuous the last two years, and I had not known a good night's rest during that time. My bowels were so constipated that I used salts regularly. My liver was sluggish, and I would get such dizzy spells that I would have to hold to something to keep from falling. My kidneys seemed to cause the severe pains across my back, and I was compelled to arise half a dozen times during the night. I had neuritis in my hands, and my circulation was so poor that my hands and feet were always cold and numb.

"I gained relief soon after starting to use Ten Herbs, and now all my old troubles have disappeared. I sleep so soundly that it does not seem possible after all these years of suffering. The pain in my left side, from which I suffered for two long years, has entirely left me. The dizzy spells and pains across my back are gone, and most nights I do not have to arise at all. Neuritis in my hands has been relieved, and my circulation has been wonderfully improved. I have gotten the same satisfactory results that everybody who uses Ten Herbs tells about. I am in good health now and it shows in my appearance. I am glad to speak a good word for a medicine that has such splendid qualities as Ten Herbs."

The Ten Herbs Man is at May's Main Store, 529 Liberty Avenue, Pittsburgh, where he is daily meeting the public and explaining the merits of this medicine. Free sample given.

and his gameness, but it develops that a manly heart beats beneath Katkish's sweater.

The proof came when Katkish appeared at the office of Commissioner Havey J. Boyle in response to a summons from that official, who had held up $100 of the beaten boxer's money until Jack came in and explained his poor showing.

"HOW much money did you receive for Monday night's bout?" asked Commissioner Boyle.

"One thousand dollars and 50 cents," replied Katkish, "not counting the $100 which you saw fit to hold out on me?"

"What did you do with the money that was given to you after the show?"

"I gave $1,000 to my mother and kept the 50 cents," replied Katty.

"Is it your custom to give your earnings to your mother?"

"Yes, sir. She has always taken care of me and it is only my duty to take care of her. There are 12 in our family and I feel that I am in a position to do more than the others."

Jack Katkish.

Commissioner Boyle returned to Katkish the $100 he had held out on him, and Jack took that home, too. And that's the fighter the smart boys said lacked gameness and was even "punch-drunk" from many beatings.

BAN ON SINCLAIR STABLE LIFTED

BALTIMORE, April 24.—(AP.)—Race horses owned by Harry F. Sinclair are once more free to appear on Maryland tracks by action of the State Racing Commission.

A ruling which barred Sinclair's horses, including those of the Rancocas Stable in which the oil man holds a part ownership, has been rescinded by unanimous vote of the commission, as a result of Sinclair's acquittal on charges on which he was tried at Washington. Chairman James A. Latane and Jervis Spencer, Jr., Democratic members of the commission, voted the resolution in a meeting yesterday at which John F. Mudd, third member, was not present, but they announced that he had concurred in their action by telephone from Havre de Grace.

A letter to the four major tracks in the state, at Pimlico, Havre de Grace, Bowie and Laurel, sent by the commission said:

"The recent trial of Harry F. Sinclair in Washington having resulted in his acquittal of the charges against him, the ruling in regard to the starting of his horses contained in our letter to you of March 30, is hereby rescinded."

BUCS RELEASE JONES

Another young Pirate was shipped to the minors today with a string attached. President Barney Dreyfuss announced this afternoon that Coburn Jones, rookie infielder, had been released under option to the Bridgeport (Conn.) club of the Eastern League.

Jones was taken on the training trip upon the recommendation of a friend of Scout Chic Fraser, who had watched his work for two seasons as a member of the Fort Bayard (N. M.) team. The youngster showed much promise in the spring practice games, but is not yet ripe for fast company, so it was decided to send him out under option for further seasoning.

The release of Jones reduces the Buccaneer forces to a total of 28 players—four catchers, 12 pitchers, six infielders and six outfielders.

CLUB FETES GOLF PROS

By VERNON A. SWARTSFAGER.

The testimonial beef steak party held by the Hotel, Club and Restaurant Gold Association for the golf professionals of the Pittsburgh district in Harry Kramer's grill last night was one of the best affairs put over in a long time. There were almost 200 persons in attendance—and not a one went home without a smile.

Under the direction of Frank Maggio, an elaborate program of entertainment was run off, aided and abetted by several selections by George Swankie, Herb Lawson and a couple of the other pros.

Seated at a special table, the professional clan, headed by Fred Brand of Allegheny, president of the Tristate Professional Golfers' Association included virtually every instructor of the district, namely: Jimmy Devlin, of Nemacolin; Dave McCormick, of St. Clair; Charley Manning, of Shannopin, and his brother Peter; Fred Baroni, of Conneaut Lake; Jack Oke, of Highland; Dave McKay, of the Pittsburgh Field Club; Capt. Smith, of the New Castle Field Club; Jack Stewart, of Thornburg; Walter Loeffler, of South Hills; Jock Kennedy, of Fox Chapel; George McBride, of the Country Club; Al McBride, of Schenley Park; Peter O'Hara, of Westmoreland; George Underwood, of Aleoma; Charley Rowe, of Oakmont; Nelson Zimmerman, of Wildwood; Herb Lawson, of Edgewood; Dale Zimmerman, of Chartiers Heights; George Swankee, of Sharon; Dave Clarke, of Castle Shannon, and Stanley Hern. It was a great gathering.

Herb Dimling was general chairman, and he was ably assisted by John Jordan, president of the organization; George Tierney, Harry Kramer, and last, but not least, Frank Brockett.

telegram was in reply to a message from Dempsey asking what terms Rickard would give for a bout with Wills and telling of an attractive offer made by California promoters.

"Wills fight will be hard to stage in the United States," Rickard's telegram, dated January 14, 1926, read: "Don't let those fellows out there bull you. I had one disastrous experience out there myself. Any man who stages a Wills-Dempsey fight will kill boxing."

Among many telegrams the promoter identified were messages exchanged with Dempsey while the first Dempsey-Tunney bout was being negotiated.

Rickard also identified an exchange of telegrams with Kearns, April 2, 1926, Kearns wired Rickard asking for terms for a Dempsey-Tunney match. Rickard's reply was "You had better let me handle this affair because I am in touch with Jack daily."

TOM HEENEY SAILS

SOUTHAMPTON, Eng., April 24.—(AP.)—In excellent spirits and apparently in good physical condition, Tom Heeney, Australian heavyweight, today set out for the United States to prepare for his championship bout with Gene Tunney.

SANDLOT BASEBALL by TOM BIRKS

WITH the signing of Jimmy Durkin, one of the most colorful outfielders on the local sandlots, Manager Daly of the Homewood-Brushton County League team, has completed his outer garden. With Ed Barney and Ollie Carnegie cavorting near the screen of the playgrounds, it would seem that the pasture is well taken care of.

Jimmy Durkin and Ollie Carnegie are both working at Pitcairn and will be members of the railroad team in the eliminations this fall.

While the County Leaguers have been unable to get any practice sessions, the booking end of the business is still going along at a merry clip. The annual session with the Homestead Grays will be staged at Forbes Field Decoration Day evening following the playing of the National League game.

With the passing of the Washington Heights Board of Trade nine this season, another Mt. Washington team will occupy Olympia Park in the Catholic Men's Club. The outfit will be members of the Greater Pittsburgh League, with Dan Reilly and S. Misterman in charge. Outside of the league a good independent schedule is going to be built up, teams like the Brown All-Stars will show at the hill grounds.

While the infield of the Dormont County Leaguers has not been definitely decided, it is stated that Backinger will be again covering the Keystone sack with George Strickler, the veteran, playing third base. Despite rumors that he will be seen elsewhere, it is also a surety that Leo Carroll will again bear the burden of the pitching for the South Hills entry. Joe Lauth and Bill Fuchs will again show in the outfield.

Gossip states that a good industrial nine is being formed at the Mine Safety Appliance as a member of the Industrial League, and that its roster will contain the names of a few well-known players that have seen active service in the County League. A good industrial league team that could fill the place of the old Model Engine nine would be quite an asset to the fans of the East End, and should the league be as fast as reported, it should get a good following.

ZIVIC DEFEATS M'CARTHY

CHICAGO, April 24. — Rallying after being outspeeded and outboxed during the first three rounds, Jack Zivic, of Pittsburgh, fought his way to a victory over Jack McCarthy, of Chicago, at the White City arena here last night.

McCarthy won only one round—the eighth—after his brilliant start. He found Zivic's chasing tactics too tough and kept backing away.

McCarthy recently has beaten My Sullivan and other good boxers here.

OIL CITY, Pa., April 24.—Jackie Shupack, of Paterson, N. J., outscored Tug Phillips, of Pittsburgh, to win a 10-round decision over him in a fast bout here last night.

M'KEESPORT RING PROGRAM CHANGED

A change has been made in the McKeesport fight card for Thursday night, a heavyweight battle between Charley Brodd and Dick Gibbons, both of McKeesport, being substituted for a joust between Jimmy McDermott and Al Dundee as one of the two 10-round feature events. Brodd recently knocked out Ed Gibbons, brother of Dick, and the latter is after revenge.

McDermott was injured in training, necessitating the change in the program.

Teddy Welch and Jack Bany, lightweight rivals of McKeesport, will meet in the main bout. Bobby Burns, of Swissvale, will make his professional debut pitted against Eddie Myers, of McKeesport, in the second bout.

A Suggestion

TO MEN

WHEN you buy your new General Motors car, why not keep your present car instead of trading it in?

Too many families are left marooned when the man of the house drives off in the morning. A woman needs a car for her business, too—the business of managing a home.

A car that is her very own will conserve her time and provide the hours in the open air that are the best health insurance for children. It will enable her to shop more economically; to see the friends who live at a distance; to keep in touch with widespread opportunities.

Buy a new car as you have planned, but keep your present car for your family.

The General Motors line offers a new car "for every purse and purpose," and ownership is made very easy through the convenience of the GMAC Time Payment Plan.

Another Suggestion

Another thrifty way to have a second car is to buy a good used car. General Motors dealers invite you to see their stocks of used cars and offer the convenience of the GMAC Plan of Purchase.

Should Men Be Preferred Whenever Work Is Scarce

By B. C. FORBES

WORKERS aplenty are writing to state why they are for or against giving employment to married women when there are not enough jobs for all the men seeking work. But this far no large employer has come forward with his views or to tell why he does or does not give preference to men and to single women obliged to support themselves.

Surely this question is sufficiently important and sufficiently timely to warrant the serious attention of employers, for is it not highly desirable that a sound principle be evolved and a policy adopted which would be in the interests of the nation?

FAR more letters than could be printed have been received. R. A. Goetke, of Queens Village, Long Island, writes in part:

"I believe married women should not be employed in business. Of course, I realize this cannot be a hard and fast rule, and yet perhaps it would prevent a great amount of unhappiness. When a false standard of living is created by two incomes it is mighty hard should it be necessary, to adjust oneself to a lower standard. And again, housework seems dull after years of married life going to business.

"What of family life? What of their parents had thought the same?

"I believe a certain percentage of unemployment today is entirely due to the married working women. They are bringing about a great amount of unhappiness to the family type of men and women.

"I am watching with interest this phase of American life, for should it appear to be the new mode of living it might be well to teach our children to look forward to this type of thinking and leave the creation of the new generation to the wealthy."

P. L. SYKES, of Twenty-first street, New York, writes:

"Out of 100 applicants for addressers last fall, about 100 men and the rest women, the only two who survived are married women. Our experience is that 50 per cent of the applicants don't want the job unless it is easy.

"Henry Ford hit the nail on the head when he said in England that the only ones out of work are those who don't want to work. A canvass of employers will show they are having a hard time getting efficient help.

"If other manufacturers did what I did in the last 15 months, that would explain unemployment. I threw the dead heads out, and with one-third the help am doing as much business and more profit.

"In one of 'help wanted ads' lately I had the following: 'Plenty of hard work.' Nobody came!"

FROM a Chicago lady comes this:

"I am married and hold a very good secretarial position. I am not working in order to have beautiful clothes and live in luxury. I am working because my husband's salary wouldn't keep us. And I think that is why a great many married girls are working."

"There is always work for those earnestly looking for it."

FROM William J. Littel, of Philadelphia:

"Unemployment is the most serious we have had for years.

"As secretary of a poor society attached to my church there is being about eight men who devote their evenings, Saturdays and Sundays to going around visiting the poor families giving them groceries, fuel and clothing, and for which they receive not a penny, I have a good opportunity to observe conditions. In many cases they are beyond description. Ordinarily during this season we have from six to eight families, now we have between 25 and 30.

"We have one family the father of which is 24 years old, stenographer and typewriter, bookkeeper and general clerk, who has been trying to secure a position for the last three months, without success, because there are so many married women employed, whose husbands are also working and fully able to provide for them. Too many married women are shirking motherhood. God said 'Go forward and multiply.' There will be a day of reckoning."

FROM a Buffalo single woman: "To my mind no country is prosperous when the majority of the married women are out in the struggle to earn a living. No home is a real home that hasn't a woman in it most of the time. But is it fair to always criticise the married woman who is working hard to hold down two people's jobs because she needs the money? Why not a little criticism directed toward the corporations that pay salaries too low for a married man to support a wife and family, but whose officers have an expensive automobile for each member of the family and several residences?"

OTHER writers discuss the effect upon child-bearing the ... employment of young ... women will have. But ... tional letters must wait.

DEMAND FOR STD. SANITARY HOLDS PRICE UP

LOCAL MARKET FIRM, QUIET

Price movements were narrow on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange today with the price trend slightly higher and most changes consisting of fractional swings from the figures quoted on the close last night.

Standard Sanitary continued in good demand at a small fraction above yesterday's best figure while the Standard preferred was handled at 127, a new high record and an advance of 1¼ points over the last previous price. No sales of Harbison were recorded in the early market, but the asking price was equal to the previous high, 204, with the bid at 201.

Fuels showed no changes from yesterday's quotations. Lone Star Gas held around 49 while Arkansas Gas sold at 8 to 8¼. The new Arkansas Gas Corporation common sold on the curb at 1⅜ to 1¾.

United Engineering and Foundry dipped under 46, a new current low, but only a few shares sold there in the forenoon. Pittsburgh Screw and Bolt was firmer, selling up about 3 points from the bottom figure of last week's dip.

The Westinghouse issues sagged off with the general list in New York and there were relative declines in the stocks here. Airbrake was a little unsteady as a result of General Railway Signal's first quarter report showing only 18 cents earned on the common as against dividend requirement of $1.25. The two concerns share the bulk of the business in the railway safety appliance and block-signal field. Electric sagged under 100 for the first time in many weeks.

GENERAL TREND OF MARKET IS DOWN

NEW YORK, April 24.—(AP.)—The line of least resistance in today's stock market was again downward, although speculation for the advance made repeated efforts to turn the tide of prices and succeeded in lifting about a dozen issues to new high records. Wall street apparently was convinced that the increase in Federal Reserve rediscount rates will become general and, for the moment at least, regarded that as bearish on stock prices.

Except for the publication of several earnings reports, which were mixed in character, there was little in the day's news to influence the price movement. After a relatively firm opening, the tobacco stocks were again under pressure as a result of the recent cigaret price cuts, although the morning declines of about 5 points each in the active issues were partly recovered by early afternoon.

Violent fluctuations again took place in Delaware and Hudson, which opened at 213, rallied to 221½ and then broke to 208½ in the early afternoon. This brought about sympathetic declines in the other rails, although New York Central, Wabash common, Western Maryland and Rock Island had sold 2 or more points above yesterday's final quotations in the early trading.

United States Leather issues were strong on the publication of an unusually favorable first quarter report. Southern Dairies A, Continental Baking A and Mexican Seaboard Oil also were conspicuous in the early advance.

Bear traders continued to seek out weak spots among the speculation. Coca Cola broke 5 points and International Harvester, Freeport Texas and Bethlehem Steel preferred sold off 2 points or more. General Motors forfeited an early gain of 2 points and recessions of 1 to 2 points took place in a number of other recent strong spots.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, April 24.—The cotton market opened easy today at a decline of 7 to 16 points, active months soon receiving fair orders of 10 to 12 points under liquidation and selling, evidently inspired by the outlook for fair and warmer weather over the greater part of the South and relatively easy Liverpool cables.

May contracts sold off to 20.06c and October to 19.72c under these offerings, but there was trade buying and covering at the decline, and probably some fresh buying on private reports regarding delays to the crop and the necessity for replanting in some sections, due to recent bad weather.

Prices rallied 4 or 5 points from the lowest, the market holding barely steady at the end of the first hour.

Private cables reported London and continental liquidation with a poor outlook in Liverpool, and that Egyptian cotton was depressed by general selling.

Unfavorable crop advices due to the recent bad weather seemed to partly offset the prospect for improving conditions in Texas and the market hovered around the last fairly steady. At midday May was selling around 20.12c and October 19.78c with the general list showing net declines of about 4 to 10 points. May was relatively firm on covering and there was considerable switching from May to later deliveries in preparation for the possibility of notices tomorrow, although the opinion was expressed in some quarters that comparatively few would be issued.

SUGAR MARKET.

NEW YORK, Apr. 24.—The raw sugar market was unchanged early today with a sale reported of 5,000 tons of Cuba at 4.92c for delivery during June.

The raw sugar refiner market was a little easier at the close under May liquidation, prompted by the issuance of 300 notices, with prices 1 point lower to 1 point higher, on the basis of 4.92c to be paid for raws, delivered. The undertone developed later in selling and renewed trade and covering with prices at middays 2 to 3 points net higher. London cables were unsettling, and this may also have had some effect on the final decline.

The refined sugar market was unchanged at 5.95c to 6c for fine granulated, with new buying still light and supplied mostly in second hand markets at prices below refiners' quotations.

Big Gift to Settlement Most Commendable Act

For the second time in a week announcement is made of a donation of hundreds of thousands of dollars by a citizen for institutional betterment. This time the gift is of $625,000 for an addition to the Irene Kaufmann Settlement. Given by Henry Kaufmann as a memorial to his deceased wife, announcement of the worthy benefaction comes simultaneously with the beginning of the work.

Mr. Kaufmann's gift to the prominent welfare center, which bears the name of his daughter, of which it is a memorial, is an auditorium, expected to be dedicated about the middle of January, 1929. It will embrace a gymnasium and a theater, giving the young people of the district it serves greater opportunity to turn their activities and talents into pleasant and useful channels for the development of character.

Mr. Kaufmann's generosity is an example of the highest conception of citizenship and his act is worthy of the thanks of the community.

"Bossy" Gillis Correct In Censure of Blue Law

Andrew J. "Bossy" Gillis is Mayor of Newburyport, Mass. Whether he put Newburyport on the map or that city put him in the limelight may be a moot question, but, taken both together, they put themselves on the first page. When he couldn't get a permit to run a gasoline station he ran for mayor, was elected, and gave himself a permit.

That jumped him right into prominence and his shirt-sleeve brand of philosophy has served to keep him there, for "Bossy" is a man of strong opinions, which he has no fear of uttering. He came to Pittsburgh a day or two ago and had not been here long before he expressed his mind about various things, including the blue laws.

The latter, "Bossy" says, are a "flop" because people who talk about enforcing them break them themselves. Pittsburgh, in his opinion, ought to wake up and "give the poor suckers" who work six days a week some place to go and have a good time on Sunday.

To use "Bossy's" language, he certainly said a mouthful. Those who talk about enforcement of the blue laws do break them. Many persons break them. Strict justice supports his contention that the working man should have the right to orderly amusement on Sunday.

Mayor Gillis is a plain man and his language is colorful but full of meaning. Behind some of it is a lot of uncommon common sense.

A Tactful Wife

What Should She Do at This Point?

ADVISE THE WIFE IN THE DOORWAY

This scene is from a British play called "Aren't Women Wonderful?"

The answer to that question is, "Yes."

What answer would you give to the question raised by this picture, which is, "What Should a Tactful Wife Do When She Enters a Room and Finds Her Husband Kissing Her Best Friend?"

There are about a million things that wives CAN do and occasionally DO.

Some wives would rush at the young lady, scratch her face, or bite her nose, to spoil her looks.

Other wives would fall in a faint.

Others, sophisticated, would require time "to consult counsel."

Others would weep and cry out, "Oh, George, how could you?"

Others, the majority, would give the young lady so close to the husband "a piece of their mind."

It all depends on what the husband amounts to, whether he is worth keeping, whether he is just a natural born fool, or impulsive for a moment.

Many a woman has seen this sort of thing. Some, of primitive emotions, look for a revolver and fire it.

Others storm their little storm, then forgive and try to forget.

Women "are wonderful," as the play suggests. And many men are wonderfully FOOLISH.

If it were not for the tact of women, their ability "not to see things" or not to "take things too seriously," many marriages sailing along quite comfortably would have been broken up long ago.

What, in your opinion, is the most TACTFUL thing the wife in this picture could do?

Needless to say that would be different from the most NATURAL thing she could do.

It all depends on how much she likes her husband and what part of the world she comes from.

A Spanish wife would think, feel and act differently from a wife born in Scandinavia.

As for the husband, no matter where he came from, he would look foolish, and under his nicely oiled hair he would try to think up some good lie—and fail.

THE HEIGHT OF SOMETHING!

Garrett P. Serviss Says:

American Geography

IT SEEMS to me a good move on the part of the Mexican delegation at the Pan-American Conference when it suggested the organization of a "Pan-American Geodetic Institute."

The first of the "functions" proposed for this institution describes in a sentence its full, and very interesting, aim. It is: "The co-ordination, distribution and propagation of geographical studies in American States."

Vast regions of the great double continent of America are still practically unknown. We know them only as we know the landscapes of the moon. We see on the globe their outlines and their general situation, but of their details we are almost wholly ignorant. No man has ever been through some regions that may well abound in wealth for the pocket and wealth for the mind; regions that may become the home of millions of civilized people.

"It shall," says the scenario of the proposed institute, "carry out and co-ordinate investigations calling for the co-operation of several countries and the control of scientific investigations."

The Americas have ceased to be a discovery of Europeans; they are now discovering themselves. The geodetic age, which has long existed in the United States, is dawning over the whole of the two long continents; they are measuring and mapping themselves. One of the functions of the institute is to participate in the joint study of frontiers and to "serve as an intermediary between American States for a better understanding between them."

This would put farther away both excuse for, and possibility of, foreign interference in American affairs.

What an individuality, what an air of masterful independence, the Americas present on the chart of the world! What a pair of geographical twins they are! They stretch in an unbroken line through a double gamut of climates, extending from one of the polar circles practically to the other. They have two temperate zones, two tropics, and virtually two frigid regions. When winter reigns at one end of the American world, summer blooms at the other. No season is ever absent from America. The long trail of the sun never quits American soil.

Another function of the proposed institute is to be the custodian of maps and geographical works pertaining to America and published by the American States.

The treasures and wonders of America have not been half appraised and described; many of them are not yet known. To say nothing of the almost unexplored tracts and regions of Central and South America, some of them the richest, in many senses, that the world contains, think of what remains to be found, utilized and described within the borders of the northern continent—yes, within some of our oldest States, right at our doors!

The geodetic maps of the United States are the finest in the world, but there are not enough of them. There are not enough American writers who take America for their subject—I do not mean the passing kaleidescopic scenes of social life, and the perishing frivolities of fashion, but the real, enduring America; that land, that geographic unit, that home for an ever developing humanity, which wears as a crown the splendid name AMERICA.

We ought to have a Washington Irving for every mountain range, and every glorious river valley, and every chain of sparkling lakes that dignifies and makes beautiful our native land. We ought all to know its geography by heart.

Isn't It So?

Telephone Rudeness

ARE you rude over the telephone?

Do you yell into the receiver because someone has called you at a very busy time?

How should the person who calls you know that you have been inconvenienced?

You expect courteous treatment, but often you don't give it.

You would not think of speaking to persons who come into your office as you do, often, to those who address you over the telephone.

Is there any reason why you should be less courteous on the telephone than you would be to callers?

One of the most irritating offenders is the one who becomes angry because he cannot hear the person who is talking.

Sometimes it is the fault of the one who is speaking, but often it is not.

Good breeding or the lack of it is apparent when you answer the telephone.

Cultivate a pleasing voice and show consideration in your telephone manners.

Enchantments

FAINT wisps of smoke, far out at sea
Lift up their beckoning plumes;
On Earth's blue rim would I might be,
Far out, where romance blooms!

Far out! The ancient dream still burns
In many a hungry breast;
The ancient phantasy returns
With promises of rest.

To ice-locked seas and desert sands,
To Orient silks and jade,
Ever to strange and lonely lands
Men's wistful thoughts have strayed.

Enchantments of the far-away,
How old, how strong their thrall!
Yet wanderers, returning, say
Home's lures outlast them all.

A POSITIVE CLUE—The other day when it was thought Lindy was lost he'd only gone to lunch, and it was unnecessary for a fleet of planes to have gone forth to hunt him. He can always find himself as long as he has his appetite with him.

Tales that are Told

His Chosen Career

REPORTS from his schoolmaster did not speak well of Bertie's mental powers.

"Look here, my son," said his father, sternly, "this latest report gives you only half marks for arithmetic, and your master has added a footnote that you seem unable to reckon accurately over one shilling. What are you going to do when you enter business life?"

The young fellow lit another cigaret.

"Don't you worry, father," he replied, blithely; "to reckon about a shilling isn't necessary to some businesses nowadays."

"What! Not necessary!"

"No," father. I'm going to start a penny bazar!"—London Tit-Bits.

Beyond His Strength

THE furniture dealer thought he would give his new assistant just one more chance.

For nearly six weeks the youth had made mistake after mistake, and though the dealer was a kind-hearted man, he found that his patience was being sadly tried.

He was wondering whether the young man had performed his task satisfactorily when there was a sudden crash in the shop.

On the floor an antique table lay upside down. The assistant, standing near by, was mopping his brow.

"It was too heavy for me, sir," he explained. "I carried it half-way to Brixton, but I really couldn't go no farther, so I brought it back."

Handy!

ANDREW M'ARDLE, the young farmer, had married a woman with a wooden leg. His friends were very surprised, for it had always been conjectured that when he did marry his bride would be a strong, healthy lassie who could help him in the fields.

"Losh, man!" cried his best friend. "What made ye dae it? Was it love?"

Andrew pulled a wry face.

"Love!" he snorted angrily. "Mebbe it's no' a bonnie thing tae marry a wumman wi' a wooden leg, but, men, she'll be awful' handy at settin' time when I'm puttin' down cabbages an' 'taties. She can jist gang awa' in front an' mak' a hole wi' her stump while I follow up an' drop in the seed."

Both Pleased

HE WAS a country lad up in London for the first time, and his uncle, a wealthy stockbroker, was showing him round Throgmorton street.

"Why is that little round fat man winking and whispering to all those others?" asked the youth from the country suddenly.

"Oh," returned his uncle, "he's just bought in the stock of an oil company dirt cheap."

The youth looked about him and noticed another man who was also whispering and chuckling to some friends.

"What is he so pleased about?" he asked his uncle.

"Oh," was the reply, "he's the man who sold the stock."

The New Excuse

IT WAS ten-thirty when little Walter strolled into the class-room. The other pupils began to giggle.

"Good heavens!" exclaimed the teacher. "Where have you been?"

"I've been coming to school," answered the small boy truthfully.

"But," protested the teacher, "you are very late. What have you been doing?"

"Well," said Walter, "I started out at the usual time, but I came another way and I saw a large notice saying, 'School—Go Slowly,' and—" he paused a second, then—"and that's why I'm late."

Articulation

AN APPEAL to actors to speak more distinctly has been issued by a group of New Yorkers interested in the theater.

It might wisely be sent to all educators as well. Clear enunciation is rare in America. Not only native players, but all and sundry are inclined to mouth their words.

The Americanized English language is a beautiful tongue when given the full benefit of its consonants and vowels. But, as commonly slurred, it is rather a jargon.

New York Day by Day

NEW YORK, April 24.—The American Kennel Club, which governs such matters, is shortly to ban the custom of cutting the ears of dogs. As the owner of a Boston made deaf by the cruelty, they have my heartiest cheer. Two states are also passing laws against the practice.

The only reason for ear-trimming was the foolish assumption it made a dog look smart. New York is the biggest market in the world for dogs. There are in greater Manhattan more than 2,000 dog shops and private kennels where dogs are sold. The annual dog show here brings visitors from Australia, India and other far-away points.

A dog will bring triple the price in New York it will in, say Indianapolis. All this in spite of the restrictions that make New York the most difficult city in which to own a canine. Every dog appearing on streets must have a regulation muzzle, a license, and be leashed. And our speakeasies flourish, tra la!

A special squad of plainclothesmen is afoot and in automobiles to look for violators, although laws are so frequently violated hundreds pay a fine weekly. On account of space conditions in apartments the lap and sleeve dogs are in the majority.

The wire-haired fox terrier continues the most popular dog in Manhattan. The white Russian wolf hound is supposed to be the real symbol of great wealth. The German police dog, which became a fad after the war, is no longer such a favorite.

The highest sum paid for a dog in New York is ninety-five hundred dollars. A Chow brought this price. The average price of a highly pedigreed dog of popular breed is $300. There are, statisticians report, just three pug dogs left in New York. Asthma wiped them out.

Fifth avenue's only vacant lot in mid-town is a tribute to a family's love for its dogs. The lot adjoins the home, and staggering offers for it have had no effect. When the dogs die, the lot will be sold. Several hotels have special menus for dogs brought by patrons. The best hotels permit small dogs in rooms. And peculiarly enough, it is only in the smartest hotels you see dogs in the lobbies.

Style technicians are still squabbling about the vest to be worn with a gentleman's dinner coat. Some say it must be white, and others say black is correct. At one Fifth avenue shop the clerk straddled the issue. "Either is correct," he said. My observation is you see the black vest on Broadway and the white on Park avenue.

An embarrassing moment was witnessed at a symphony concert the other night when the orchestra seemed to die down to a thin note and a gentleman broke into violent applause, thinking it the end of the piece. More amusing still was when the music went suddenly into a crescendo to see him pretending to brush something or other off his palms.

And a friend tells of waiting in a well-appointed drawing room of a lady he was desirous of impressing. During his wait, curiosity impelled him to inspect a vase on a table. He slipped his hand into it, and for some unaccountable reason could not get it out. He heard the lady's steps and, holding the imprisoned hand behind, met her. When she was so insistent he sit down he had to confess his predicament. The vase with difficulty was removed, but the gentleman has not been around since.

Three New York newspapers now use the euphemistic expression "passing on" instead of "dying."

An eating place on Lexington avenue takes in much territory. It is called "The Kentucky-Tennessee-Georgia Cafe," and that should read Alabama.

Four out-of-town hotel visitors were removed to New York hospitals last week with cracked ribs, as the result of falls in bath tubs. I've frequently warned 'em out in the brush to keep away from those hellish city contraptions.

The Organized Church

By DR. FRANK CRANE

Throwing stones at the church, picking at its flaws, showing up its inconsistencies and otherwise baiting it seems to be the favorite indoor sport of some newspaper writers.

One would gather that the organized church is a moribund and altogether retroactive institution and that the sooner we get rid of it the sooner we can all merrily go on our way rejoicing, get drunk when we please, get married and divorced at will. You would infer that it would be a great day for the human race when at last the church shall have been abolished.

We are still a long way, however, from getting rid of the church. Figures were published the other day stating how much money was voluntarily given to the church. I do not recall them as I have no head for statistics, but it was away up in the millions. This money was not collected by tax collectors, nor extorted from the people by force, but enough of it was voluntarily laid at the doors of this institution to finance a good-sized nation.

All of it goes to prove that the church is still very close to the hearts of the common people.

Fred B. Smith, one of the greatest organizers of our time, in an address the other day told of the three things the church stands for. No matter what its shortcomings or inconsistencies, it stands like a wall for these three things, and in them interprets the conscience of the people.

First, the church stands for economic justice. So long as a little child is overworked or a woman defrauded or a laboring man oppressed, so long will the church's voice be heard.

Some people think the church has no business meddling with economics. Most people who think that are doing something they shouldn't. Mr. Smith said that whenever a man approached him and told him to stick to preaching the pure gospel and not to meddle with business or politics, he wondered what kind of dirty work the man was up to.

In the second place, the organized church stands squarely against the sale of alcoholic beverages.

So long as there is one place left in the world where alcohol is kept for public sale, the organized church will be heard in protest. In spite of the squirmings of newspaper writers the conscience of the world stands squarely behind the organized church in opposition to the saloon.

The organized church is opposed to war. Much quibbling is done by those who seek to reconcile what Bernard Shaw calls the vanity of patriotism with Christ's love for humanity, but the church is voicing its protest against the most damnable institution that has ever cursed humanity—war!

It may take a good while, but the time is sure to come when these three evil things—economic injustice, the public sale of liquor and the institution of war—will give way before the advancing conscience of civilization, represented in the organized church.

OH, THESE WOMEN!

By LEOLA ALLARD.

"BATH HOUSE" JOHN COUGHLIN, Chicago alderman, will introduce a city ordinance to have cars on both surface and elevated trains exclusively for women. "These frail women are jammed in with a lot of rough men," said the alderman.

Aw, what does he mean, "rough men"? Count Keyserling says the American men are getting weaker and weaker and the women are becoming Amazons. Now the alderman is going to start pampering the women folks and ruin the whole plan.

Elizabeth Welch, 11 years old, didn't have a dime in her bank, when along came a strange man and dumped $500,000 into her lap. Try to tell Elizabeth there aren't any Easter rabbits and that Santa Claus is a hoax! Her dad was a poor inventor when he died, but he had an honest cousin, Dan O'Neill, of San Francisco, who kept the engine plans and sold them. Then he took the trouble to find the child.

Sixty-five per cent of the ocean travel is done by women. It is the women who play and play.

The companionate marriage of Josephine Haldeman and Aubery Roselle, famous the country over, has had a flat ending. The flat is in Los Angeles, and they have graduated into regular married folks, after all. They can't see the use of living apart.

Now, just what does Dan do to companionate marriage?

Mrs. Orra Blackmore, of Detroit, was chairman for woman's day at the American Aircraft Show at Detroit. She was badly injured in an accident, but smilingly went to the show in a wheel chair, putting to shame the women who shirk public duties, and offer the most trivial excuses for doing so.

Carl Crosby, of Chicago, is arrested charged with operating a confidence game. He won the money and affections of several elderly ladies and then ran away.

If old ladies who are lonely and rich only knew how much better off they are than old ladies who are lonely and broke!
